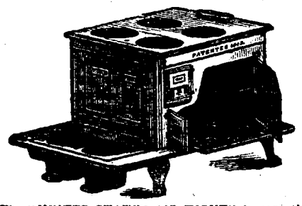
B. W. OAKLEY,

THANKFUL for the favors of the past, would respectfully inform his old customers and the public generally that his Fall and Winter supply has in part arrived, and is still coming; so that by the close of navigation all demands for the season can be promptly filled.

STOVES.

We place the "IMPERIAL AIR TIGHT" first; because we consider them decidedly foremost in the way of all stoves.



The "UNITED STATES AIR TIGHT" is next, tho' many consider them equal, if not superiot to those above—and with them may be classed the Washington and Troy Air Tights and the Quackenboss Air Tights, of Albany.

PREMIUM STOVES.

Among the different kinds of Premium Cooking Stoves we have the "Troy Victory," to the excellent qualities of which all who have ever tried them will readily attest. We select'd them as the best premium stove in market, and the increased demand for them induced us to bring on a large assortment. We have also the common premiums from Buffalo and Cincinnati, and last though not least, the "Farmer," with no roses or superficial ornaments, but no well recommended that any one wishing a stove can take it, and bring it back again if it does not work well Last, & least in the Cooking line stands the great "Hathaway," of Dayton, which we keep on hand for the especial benefit of those who prefer this to a better article.

Parlor Stoves of Cast or Sheet Iron, Dining Room Stoves Shop and Store Room Stoves of all varieties and sizes from a meeting house to a 10 by 12.

In connection with our Stove trade we have added a small but well selected assortment of Castings and Hardware.

Consisting in the main of all the most essential and necessary articles used by farmers and mechanics.

Our Tin and Copper business is still as noisy as ever, and all hands ready and happy to wait upon those who desire any thing in our line.

POETRY.

THE BEAUTY OF LIBERTY.

"In all things that have beauty, there is nothing to man more comely than Liberty."—MILTON

When the dance of the shadows,
At day-break is done,
And the cheeks of the morning
Are red with the sun,
When he sinks in his glory,
At eve, from the view,
And calls up the planet,
To blaze in the blue;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
More proud than the sight of a nation when free?

When the beautiful bend
Of the bow is above
Like a collar of light,
On the bosom of love—
When the moon in her mildness
Is floating on high
Like a banner of silver
Hung out in the sky;
There is beauty—but earth has no beauty to see,
More proud than the front of nation when free,

In the depth of the darkness,
Unvaried in hue,
When the shadows are veiling
The breast of the blue;
When the voice of the tempest,
At midnight is still,
And the spirit of solitude
Sobs on the hill;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the broad-beaming brow of a nation when free?

In the breath of the morning,
When nature's awake,
And calls up the chorus
To chaunt in the brake;
In the voice of the echo,
Unbound in the woods;
In the warbling of streams
And the foaming of floods;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the thrice-hallowed sight of a nation when free?

When the striving of surges,
Is mad on the main,
Like the charge of a column
Of plumes on the plain;
When the thunder is up
From his cloud-cradled sleep,
And the tempest is treading
The paths of the deep;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the sun-brilliant brow of a nation when free?

THE HUSBAND TO HIS WIFE.

A PATHETIC APPEAL.

I ask thee not to yield thy love,
For that e'en now is mine;
I ask the not thy faith to prove,
Thy heart is truth's pure shine;
Thou need'st not paint thee lily-fair,
Nor gild refined gold;
Nature hath limned a richness there
Which art can ne'er unfold.
But oh! I have one poor request,
Sanctioned by Gods and men,
Thy power can give to Love a zest,
Say will you grant it then?
She smiled assent—"what is it life?
The secret now disclose"—
Said he—"my own, my dearest wife,
GO WIPE THE BABY'S NOSE!"

A BAD HABIT CURED.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

One of the virtues peculiar to society in this country—and it may be to other countries, for aught we know—is a tender regard for the consciences of others. People are disposed to interpret St. Paul's injunction to the Philippians, "Look not every man on his own things, but every man, also, on the things of his neighbor," after the most literal fashion.—We see this manifested in a great variety of ways, but in none more prominently than in the effort to make people pay due regard to the precept, "Of him that would borrow of thee, turn thou not away."

Mrs. Armand was the very personification of this virtue; and she took good care that none in her neighborhood suffered condemnation for lack of a living faith in the precept last quoted, as sundry careful housewives could testify.

Mr. Armand differed with his wife in some matters, and particularly in regard to the morality of her borrowing practices, and often recorded his protest against their continuance; the doing of which satisfied him more and more, each time it was repeated, that "when a woman will, she will, you may depend on't." A fair sample of the discussion held on the subject, may be seen in the following matrimonial passage of small arms, which occurred in consequence of the appearance on the table, one morning, of a strange looking Britannia ware coffee-pot.

'Where did that come from, Sarah?' was the natural inquiry of Mr. Armand, as his eye rested on this handsome addition to the appendages of the tea tray.

'Kitty melted the bottom off my coffee-pot yesterday, the careless thing,' replied Mrs. Armand, 'and it is not mended yet; and so I borrowed Mrs. Lovell's for this morning.'

'I wouldn't have done that,' said the husband.

'Why wouldn't you?' very pertinently inquired Mrs. Armand.

'Oh, because I wouldn't.'

'Give a reason. Men are always fierce enough for reasons.'

'Because I don't think it right to borrow other people's things, when we can do without them.'

'We couldn't do without a coffee-pot, could we?'

'Yes; I think so.'

'How, pray?'

'Rather than borrow, I would have made tea for breakfast, until our coffee-pot was mended.'

'A nice grumbling time there would have been, if I had tried to put you off with a cup of tea.'

'I don't think I am such a grumbler as that, Sarah. I believe I am as easily satisfied as most men. I'm sure I would rather drink tea all my life than take coffee from a borrowed coffee-pot.'

'So much for trying to provide for your comfort,' said Mrs. Armand, in a complaining tone of voice.

'I never wish you to do wrong for the sake of securing my comfort,' returned her husband.

'Do wrong! Do you mean to say that it is wrong to borrow and lend?'

'It is wrong to borrow on every trifling occasion, for this is to be unjust to others, who are constantly deprived of the use or possession of such things as are their own.'

'I wouldn't like to live in a world as selfish as it would be, if made after your model,' said Mrs. Armand.

'No doubt it would be bad enough,' replied the husband; "but I am sure borrowers would be scarce."

'But what harm can my using Mrs. Lovell's coffee-pot for a single morning do, I would like to know?'

Mr. Armand answered this interrogatory, not however, conclusively enough to satisfy his wife. Mrs. Lovell's opinion on the subject being much more to the point, will best enlighten the reader, and so we will give that. Mrs. Lovell was preparing to go down to breakfast, when her cook came to her chamber door and said—

'Mrs. Armand, ma'am, wants you to lend her your coffee-pot. She says Kitty melted the bottom off hers, and it aint mended yet.—She just wants it for this morning.'

'Very well,' returned Mrs. Lovell. The tone in which this was said, did not express much pleasure. As the girl retired Mrs. Lovell remarked, in a grumbling way, to her husband,

'And no doubt, Kitty'll melt the bottom off of mine before night.'

'You are not going to let her have that handsome Britannia coffee-pot?' said Mr. Lovell.

'I have no other, and she knows it.'

'You might say you have only one. She will think that in use.'

'No she won't; for she is very well aware of the fact that we don't make coffee unless when we happen to have company.'

'As you had not the resolution to say 'no,' you will have to take your chance.'

'And the chances will all be against me.—Of that I am certain. I never loaned Mrs. Armand anything in my life, that it didn't come home injured in some way.'

'Then your coffee-pot will hardly prove an exception.'

'I'm afraid not. Oh, dear! I wish that people would let their neighbors possess the little they have in peace. I've had that set of Britannia ware for five years, and there is not a bad scratch or bruise upon any part of it. If Mrs. Armand lets the coffee-pot get injured, I shall be too angry.'

'I almost hope she will,' said Mr. Lovell.

'Why, Henry?'

'You will then, in all probability, fall back upon your reserved rights, and throw Mrs. Armand, in future, upon hers.'

'What are our reserved rights?'

'In this case, yours will be to refuse lending what your neighbors should buy; and hers will be to buy what she can't conveniently borrow.'

'I don't wish to offend her,' said Mrs. Lovell, 'but, if she does let my coffee-pot get injured, I shall be too much put out.'

'In other words, you will say something sharp about it.'

'Very likely. I'm apt, you know, to speak out on the spur of the occasion.'

'Then I shall be very well content to see the spout knocked off, the handle bent, or a bruise as large as a walnut in the side of your coffee pot.'

'Henry! Why will you say so?'

'Because I happen to feel all I say. This borrowing nuisance is intolerable, and its suppression can hardly be obtained at too dear a cost. How many umbrellas has Mrs. Armand lost or ruined for us in the last two years?'

'Don't ask me that question. I've never tried to keep the 'counts.'

'Half a dozen at least.'

'You may safely set the number down at that. But, if I could get off with umbrellas, I'd buy a case, and let her have one a month, and think the arrangement a bargain. The fact is, I have scarcely an article of moveable household goods, or wearing apparel, that doesn't show sad evidence of having been used by some one beside myself. You know that dear little merino cloak of Charley's, in which he looked so sweet?'

'Yes. What of it?'

'Last Sunday Mrs. Armand had her baby baptized. Of course she had nothing decent to put on it, and of course sent for Charley's cloak. What could I do?'

'You could have declined letting her have the cloak.'

'Not under the circumstances.'

'Hasn't her baby a cloak?'

'Yes, but it's full of grease spots—not fit to be seen.'

'It's good enough for her baby, if she does not think proper to provide a better one.'

'All very easily said. But I couldn't refuse the cloak, though I let it go with fear and trembling. Now just look at it!'

Mrs. Lovell opened a drawer, and taking out the dove-colored cloak, with its white and blue lining, slowly opened it.

'Bless me!' exclaimed her husband, as the back of the collar was displayed, and showed several square inches of discoloration. "What in the world could have done that?'

'Perspiration from the child's head. Charley has worn it twenty times, yet not a spot was to be seen before. But this is not the worst. To keep the baby from crying in church, a piece of red candy was put in its mouth."

'Goodness!'

'And as the baby was cutting teeth, the result can hardly be wondered at. Look!'

Mrs. Lovell held up the front of the cloak. From the collar to the skirt were lines, broad irregular patches, and finger marks dark, red, and gummy.

'That beats every thing!' exclaimed Mr. Lovell.

'But it isn't all,' added the wife, as she turned the cloak around, and showed a grease spot half as large as her hand upon the skirt. 'After the child was brought home, nurse took off the cloak and threw it upon the table, where one of the children had just laid a large slice of bread and butter.'

'Is that all?' asked Mr. Lovell.

'I haven't looked any further,' replied Mrs. Lovell, tossing the ruined garment from her with an impatient air. 'But isn't it too much to bear?'

'What did the lady say when she brought it home?'

'She sent it by one of her girls, who said that there were two or three spots on the cloak for which Mrs. Armand was sorry; but she thought I could easily rub them out.'

'Humph!'

'The cloak is totally ruined. I don't know when I had anything to vex me so much.—And it was such a beauty.'

'What will you do?'

'Throw it away. I can't let my baby wear a soiled and greasy cloak. See!' And Mrs. Lovell went to her drawers. 'I've got cashmere for a new one.'

'Well now, this is too bad!' exclaimed Mr. Lovell. 'Too bad! If I were you, I'd send her the cloak, with my compliments, and tell her to keep it.'

'Oh, I don't wish to make her an enemy.'

'Better have such persons enemies than friends.'

'Perhaps not.'

'What's the use of your making a new cloak for Charley? You'll lend it to Mrs. Armand when she wants to send her baby out, and the ——'

'Beg your pardon, husband dear. But I will do no such thing.'

'We'll see.'

'And we will see.'

Mrs. Lovell spoke pretty resolutely, as if her mind were, for once in her life, made up not to be imposed upon.

The breakfast bell ringing at the moment, Mr. and Mrs. Lovell dropped the subject for the discussion of one rather more agreeable.

The day passed without the return of the coffee-pot, about which Mrs. Lovell could not help feeling some uneasiness. And she had good reason: for nothing came home from the hands of the incorrigible borrower that did not show signs of hard or careless usage.

On the next day Mrs. Armand called in to pay her neighbors a visit.

'I havn't sent home your coffee pot yet,' said she, during a pause in the conversation that followed her entrance. 'I told Kitty, yesterday, to take ours immediately and get it mended; but I found this morning that she had failed to do so. I never saw such a careless, forgetful creature in my life.'

It's no matter,' Mrs. Lovell forced herself to say, at the cost of a departure from the truth.

'Oh, I knew it was no difference, because you don't make coffee regularly,' responded Mrs. Armand; 'but, then, I never like to be using other people's things when I can help it. Besides, our Kitty is such a careless creature, that every thing she touches is in danger; and I'm afraid it might get injured. I noticed a little dent in the spout this morning.'

'Not a bad one,' said Mrs. Lovell, thrown a little off her guard by this admission. The tone in which she spoke expressed some anxiety.

'Oh, no, no,' replied Mrs. Armand quickly. 'You would hardly see it unless it were pointed out. But even for so trifling an injury I can assure you I scolded Kitty well. As soon as I go home, I will start her off with my coffee-pot, if she has not already taken it to the tinner's.'

Days passed, but the coffee-pot still remained in the possession of Mrs. Armand. In the meantime, Charley's new cloak of very fine light blue cashmere was finished, and as Mrs. Lovell was a little proud of her baby—what mother is not?—the cloak went out to take an airing, the baby inside of course, every day for a week afterwards.

One afternoon some friends came in, and Mrs. Lovell persuaded them to stay and spend the evening. Shortly after they arrived, a messenger came from Mrs. Armand, with a request for the loan of Charley's cloak, as the mother wanted to send her baby down to Jones' Hotel, that a friend of her's, who was passing through the city might see him.

Mrs. Lovell said, 'Very well," and took from a drawer the dove-colored merino cloak that had suffered so severely at the christening, and handed it to the girl who had come from Mrs. Armand.

In a few moments the girl returned with the cloak, and said—

'It isn't the one that Mrs. Armand wants. She says, please to let her have the blue one. She'll take good care of it.'

Mrs. Lovell took the dove-colored cloak, and turned with it to the drawer slowly, debating in her mind what she should do. She must either offend Mrs. Armand, or run the risk of having the new cloak, which cost ten dollars, besides her labor, spoiled as the other had been. She did not wish to do the former; but how could she submit to the latter? Just as, in her doubt and hesitation, she laid her hand upon the new garment, a thought struck her, and turning to the girl, she said—

'Tell Mrs. Armand that she can have the light cloak in welcome; but Charley is going out, and will wear the blue one.'

The girl departed, and Charley got an extra airing that day. Mrs. Armand was exceedingly indignant and wondered if Mrs. Lovell supposed she was going to send her child out in that soiled and greasy thing!'

Towards supper time, Mrs. Lovell's cook asked her if she wished coffee made.

'Oh, certainly,' was replied.

'Mrs. Armand has our coffee-pot.'

'I know. You must go in for it.'

The cook took off her apron, and ran into Mrs. Armand's for the coffee-pot. In a few moments she returned, and said—

'Mrs. Armand can't let you have it before to-morrow. Her's is not mended yet,—and Mr. Armand always drinks coffee for supper.'

'But go and tell her that I have company and cannot do without it,' replied Mrs. Lovell, a little impatiently.

The girl went back. When she returned, the coffee-pot was in her possession. As she set it down before Mrs. Lovell, she said—

'Mrs. Armand didn't seem to like it much.'

'Like what much?'

'Your sending again. She says her husband never drinks tea, and she don't know how she is going to make him coffee.'

'But that isn't my coffee-pot!'

'Yes ma'am.'

'Oh no. Never!' And Mrs. Lovell took up a dingy looking affair that her cook had brought in, and eyed it doubtingly. She remembered her Britannia coffee-pot as a beautiful piece of ware, without a scratch or bruise, and bright as silver. But this was as dull as pewter; a part of the bottom, an eighth of an inch wide and three inches long, had been melted off or turned up; there were several large dents in it; the mouth of the spout had received a disfiguring bruise; and the little jet knob on the lid was entirely broken off!—No, no—this was not her coffee-pot. But cook insisted that it was, and soon proved her assertion.

This was to much for Mrs. Lovell, and the forbearance of that long suffering lady yeilded under the too heavy pressure it was called to sustain.

'That my coffee-pot!' she exclaimed, with a most indignant emphasis, and lifting it from the table on which the cook had placed it, she sat it down upon a tea-tray, which contained the other peices belonging to her beautiful set of Britannia, the contrast was lamentable.

'There!' said she with a glowing cheek, and voice an octave higher than usual, 'Take the whole set in to Mrs. Armand, with my compliments, and say that I make her a present of it.'

The cook didn't need to be told her errand twice. Before Mrs. Lovell had time for reflection and repentance, she was beyond recall.

The dining-room and kitchen of Mrs. Armand's house were in the same story, and separated only by a door. It happened that Mr. Armand was at home when Mrs. Lovell's cook came in and presented the breakfast and tea set, with the compliments of her mistress.—The tone in which the message was given, as it reached his ears, satisfied him that something was wrong; and he was put beyond all doubt when he heard his wife say, with unusual excitement in her voice—

'Take them back! Take them back!'

But the girl retreated hastily, and left her in full possession of the tray and its contents.

'What's the matter?' inquired Mr. Armand as his wife retreated into the dining room with flushed face and quivering lip. It was some moments before she could speak, and then she said something in a confused way about an insult. Not being able to understand what it all meant, Mr. Armand sought for information in the kitchen.

'Whose is this?' he said to Kitty, laying his hand upon the Britannia set.

'Mrs. Lovell's,' replied Litty.

'Why is it here?'

'Mrs Lovell sent it in as a present to Mrs. Armand.'

'Indeed!' Mr. Armand looked a little closer.

'Is this the coffee-pot we have been using a week?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Humph!' Light was breaking into his mind.

'Abusing I should have said,' he added.—'And because the coffee-pot has been ruined, and the set broken, Mrs. Lovell makes us a present of what remains?'

Kitty held down her head in silence.

After examining the coffee-pot, and contrasting it with other peices of the set, Mr. Armand made an angry exclamation, and retired from the kitchen. He did not re-enter the dining-room where he had left his wife, but took his hat, and going out of the front door, shut it hard after him. In about half an hour he returned.

'Where have you been?' his wife ventured to ask as he entered the room where she was sitting in no very enviable mood.

'Trying to repair the wrong you have done.'

'How do you mean?' asked Mrs. Armand

'I've bought a handsome set of Britannia ware for Mrs. Lovell,' replied the husband, 'and sent it to her with a note of apology, and a request from me, as a particular favor, never to lend you anything again, as you would be sure to injure it.'

'Mr. Armand!'

'It is true every word of it. I never was so mortified by anything in my life. I don't wonder that Mrs. Lovell sent you the beautiful set you had broken. The fact is, this borrowing system must come to an end. If you want anything, buy it; and if you are not able, do without it.'

Poor Mrs. Armand, whose feelings during the brief absence of her husband were by no means to be envied, now burst into tears and cried bitterly. Mr. Armand made no attempt to soothe the distress of his wife. He felt a little angry; and when one is angry there is not much room left in the mind for sympathy towards those who have excited the anger.

After supper, while Mrs. Armand sat sewing, her face under a cloud, and Mr. Armand was endeavoring to get over the unpleasant excitement he had experienced, by means of a book, some one rung the bell. In a little while Mr. Lovell was announced.

'More about the Coffee-pot,' replied Mr. Armand, as he laid aside his book.

Mrs. Armand made no answer, and her husband left the room where they were sitting, and entered the parlor. Mr. Lovell, who was standing in the floor, extended his hand, and said with a smile—

'I'm afraid my wife's hasty conduct—for which she is extremely sorry—has both hurt and offended you. And as these are matters which, if left to themselves, like hidden fire, increase to a flame, I thought it best to see you at once, and offer all necessary apologies on her behalf.'

'Not hurt in the least!' replied Mr. Armand good-humoredly. 'And as for apologies, Mrs. Lovell wants no better one than the wreck of her beautiful coffee-pot, which I have minutely examined. I am glad she sent it back, just as she did, and for two reasons.—It gave me an opportunity to repair the wrong which had been done, and served as a lesson to my wife, such as she needed and will not soon forget. No, no, Mr. Lovell! don't let this make you feel the least unpleasant.'

'But my wife says she cannot think of keeping the beautiful tea and coffee set you sent her.'

'Tell her that she will have to keep them. They are hers in simple justice. If she sends them here, they will not be received. So she has no remedy. We want a set and will keep yours. If a disfigured coffee-pot has to be used let it be by those who are guilty of the abuse. And now, Mr. Lovell, tell your good lady from me, that if she lends my wife any thing more, I will not be responsible; as I have always disapproved the system, and am now, more than ever, opposed to it.'

This last sentence was spoken playfully.—After half an hour's good-humored conversation, the gentlemen parted. It was some days before the ladies met, and then they were a little reserved towards each other.—This reserve never entirely wore off. But there was no more borrowing from Mrs. Lovell or any one else; for Mrs. Armand was entirely cured of her desire to make others keep the scriptural injunction, to which allusion was made in the commencement of our story.

RAILROAD TO SAN FRANCISCO.—A meeting has been held in the City of Boston, of those friendly to the construction of a Railroad from St. Louis to San Francisco. An address to the people of the United States was read and adopted, which suggested the following plan:

That a company composed of men, in whose integrity and strength of purpose confidence can be reposed by the nation, be charted by Congress, to construct a railroad from St Louis to San Francisco, with a capital of $100,000,000, and that the company (after having paid $2,000,000) shall have the right to borrow U. S. 6 per cent stock to such an amount (not exceeding $98,000,000) as may be sufficient to finish the road and carry into full operation, with a double track.

That Congress give to this company, a string of public land 10 miles wide on the north side of the road, and the land for the bed of the road and for depots; and the right to take, from the public land, wood, gravel, stone, iron, and other material necessary to construct the road.

A very modest proposition, indeed, on the part of these gentlemen of Boston! It is very possible Congress will hesitate a little before loaning ninety-eight millions of dollars to a company of gentlemen who have paid in but two millions. We are in favor of the road.—The country needs it. It is the great project of the age, and with or without the assistance of the government, it must be built. But if the United States are to furnish 98-100ths of the capital, they had better take the whole, and make it a government, and make it a government road—and then in a very short time, it will be a free road. Perhaps, after all, though, it is better to give these projectors ten miles in width on the north side of the road, than to give Mr. Whitney and his confederates thirty miles on each side of the road, which they demand as a prerequisite for the undertaking.—Merchants' Ledger.

Another Excuse.—The whigs are forced to admit that if General Taylor refuses to appoint anti-war men to office, he can appoint but few whigs; and they say he would like to appoint some of those who fought in the recent war, but unfortunately the soldiers were nearly all Democrats.

Cotton Placer.—The Clinton Cotton Manufacturing Company of Woonsocket, R. I., are making large additions to their establishment. The Company, consisting of three capitalists, purchased the mills five years ago for $50,000. The last year they made a dividend of $10,000 each.—Philadelphia News. whig.

And yet, notwithstanding the enormous profits which the cotton manufacturers are enabled to make, under the present tariff, they are constantly demanding more protection, and the whig newspapers are endeavoring to make the people believe the country will be ruined if it is not granted! We submit that the people should be "protected" from the manufacturers.

Senator Benton on the Slavery Question.—Senator Benton has made a speech defining his position on the Slavery question. The first part only has been published.

Several columns are devoted to an exposition of Mr. Calhoun's inconsistencies, in the matter of slavery.

Mr. Benton is very explicit. He says it is absurd to deny to Congress the power to legislate as it pleases upon the subject. For the Territories it has ever used the power, and with the sanction of all the authorities, State and Federal, from the foundation of the Government to the present time. Congress alone, has the power to prohibit or admit Slavery. The power is not in the territories, for their governments, and the officers depending therein, are the creatures of Congress. No citizen of any State can carry property derived from the law in that State one inch beyond the boundary line which creates the Slave property. For this reason Slaves cannot be removed to California or New Mexico. Slavery cannot be legally established in either Territory. The only effect of taking Slaves there would be, to set them free. The people of both Territories are unanimously opposed to it. The Missouri resolutions are copied from Calhoun's resolutions in the Senate, of 1847; and to understand the design of them, you must be aware that they were aimed at the harmony and stability of the Union, and the members of the non slaveholding States. As for himself, especially, he would not follow in the lead of John C. Calhoun.

These are Mr. Benton's views, as disclosed in his speech.

There is mention made, of a dull clergyman who cornered a farmer whom he seldom saw at his ministrations, by asking him directly, after a little reproof for his sin of omission, 'Shall we see you at church next Sabbath?'—'Ye e-s,' he replied slowly, 'I'll go—or send hand! It was the same interesting clergyman who one hot, drowsy summer day, found, on concluding a long discourse, that half his congregation were rubbing their eyes and waking up, being startled by the sudden silence; whereupon he quietly said: 'My friends, this sermon cost me a great deal of labor, in fact rather more than usual; you don't seem to have paid it quite as much attention as it deserved. I think I will go over it again!' And go over it he did, from text to exhortation, He 'had em there didn't he?

CHICAGO, May 30.

Cure for the Cholera.—Our citizens are quite excited by the discovery of what is said to be a specific cure for the cholera, at once, simple, cheap, and effective, in the more advanced as well as in recent cases. Dr. Bird has the honor of the discovery. Drs. Herrick and Brodey, Professors of the Chicago Medical College, and four other of our first physicians, have said to be using it with perfect success. It is simply four parts sulphur and one charcoal, in pills, one every two or three hours. As far as it has been tested, astonishing results have been experienced, in the worst stages of cholera lapse.

From the last report of the Board of Health we learn that on May 26 there were no cases, on the 27, 3 cases, 28, none.

Gunpowder vs. Cholera.—When the cholera visited London in 1832 and '33, the city authorities had small quantities of gunpowder tied tightly in strong paper and fired in the alleys and densely populated portions of the great metropolis. The concussion disturbed the air, and the odor from the powder displaced obnoxious effluvia and purified the atmosphere. It was used in theatres, churches and school rooms, and was found to be a powerful disinfecting agent the smell remaining upwards of 24 hours in the buildings. It was used in the lazarettos of Trieste and Malta, and and was tried in Paris in 1843, and also in Montreal. In the latter city cannon were placed in the narrow streets and fired with blank cartridges. In some of the western towns recently afflicted, the same remedy has been tried with success.

Cures for Cholera.—The papers contain numerous prescriptions for Cholera. They may all be good perhaps, and if the material is at hand for one, it may be for another—hence the propriety of publishing them. The following is given from a Liverpool paper as having successfully in India:

"Take three table spoons full of castor oil, three table spoons full of the best French brandy, and forty drops of laudanum, mixed together, and let the patient drink it off. The body must then be rubbed over with brandy and a hot flannel cloth. Should the condition of the patient not improve within one hour, and the nails of the fingers begin to get blue, administer one table spoonful of castor oil and of French brandy, and ten drops of laudanum. This generally throws the sufferer into a sound sleep, from which he will awaken perfectly well. This treatment has been found the most effectual in India, where cholera first appeared, and thousands of persons were cured by this very simple remedy."

Extraordinary Elopement in Maine.—Rev. Daniel L. Quimby, of Lisbon, who for the last fifteen years has been a circuit preacher of the Methodist persuasion, and who all up to the moment of his departure, had been above suspicion, and had enjoyed the confidence and respect of a large circle of highly respectable friends and relatives, has eloped. For a year or two past, Quimby has been residing at Lisbon, Me., his native town, where he owns a small property, and where his wife and children, three in number, still remain. Two weeks ago last Monday, he left his home to go to Redfield, Wayne, &c., to be absent the next Saturday. It seems he went to Wayne, the residence of Mrs. Lawrence Paramour, who has left behind her three children, the youngest of whom is only a year and a half old. Not finding her in readiness, he remained in that vicinity through the week, and on the Sabbath enlightened the good people of that town with instructions upon the great truths of morality, virtue, and religion. On the following day he took Mrs. Lawrence to bring her to Lewistown, where she has relatives residing. He came there, tarried all night, and since that time they have not been seen nor heard of.—N. Y. Express.

The Last Californian.—On Monday last we saw a man wending his way to El Dorado in a covered Canadian French cart, drawn by a single poney. He had come all the way from Kingston, Canada. It is supposed that he is the last Canadian going to California, there being but this pony and a half a team left, he "ordered it up and went it alone."

Ladies' Supper.

The Ladies of the Episcopal Church propose giving a SUPPER for the benefit of the Church, on Thursday evening next, June 15 h, in the rooms over the store room lately occupied by E. D. Bartlett & Co. on Columbia Street. The citizens generally are invited to attend.

Tickets 50 cts. to be had at Walker's, Bailey's, and Reed & Co's stores, or at the door.

Another Whig Candidate for Congress — The Times this week hoists the name of Judge Kilgore as their choice for Congress. So far as the editor of the Times is concerned, this is no more than might be expected; but when he says that by so doing he "reflects the sentiments of a majority of the whigs of the Tenth Congressional District," he certainly overshoots the mark, and gives the lie to the resolution he himself offered in the Convention at Huntington. That resolution reads: Resolved, that ALLEN HAMILTON of Allen co. is the choice of the delegates present at this Convention," &c. The Allen Co. Convention also, recommended Mr. Hamilton as their first choice, Judge Hanna as the second, Mr. Mahon as the third, and Judge Kilgore as the last choice. Now, the editor of the Times pretends that he reflects the opinion of the whigs by advocating the claims of Kilgore over the others named in preference to him.—The whigs in this section must feel under strong obligations to the editor of the Times thus aiding a candidate in a remote part of the district in crowding off our own citizens and neighbors from the track.

Odd Fellows' Celebration.—The members of Fort Wayne Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F. had a celebration at this place on Thursday last. A large number of visiting brethren from other places were in attendance. About ten o'clock a procession was formed and proceeded through the city to Ewing's grove, where after singing and prayer, a beautiful and singularly appropriate address was delivered by Rev. Bro. Brenton. The procession was then reformed and returned to the Spencer House, where the brethren and a large number of ladies and citizens partook of a sumptuous repast prepared by Mr. Hamilton and his accomplished lady and daughters, which was universally allowed to be the best got up dinner ever prepared in the place. and reflects the highest credit on the liberality and skill of Uncle Fred." The Delphi Band was in attendance, and "discoursed most excellent music," adding much to the interest of the day's exercises.

The Order, in their splendid regalia, made a beautiful and imposing appearance; the music was excellent; the singing by the choir highly creditable to the vocal talents of the ladies of our city; the oration was pronounced by all to be the best they had ever listened to; the dinner was every thing the most dainty epicures could wish; and to sum up, the whole celebration was in the highest degree gratifying and satisfactory. Mr. Brenton's oration will be published in pamphlet form by the Lodge.

Whig Candidate for Legislature.—Our neighbor does not relish our exposition of the motives which induced the whig wire workers to nominate Mr. Muhler as their candidate for Representative. His attempt to persuade the public that the whig party are the peculiar friends of the naturalized citizens is the richest thing we have seen lately; it is about as nice a specimen of cool assurance and effrontery as we have ever witnessed even from the whigs. The party that took up and elected Gen. Taylor, the native candidate for President, certainly have strong claims to be considered the friends of the naturalized citizens, and may reasonably count on the votes of that class of citizens!

By the way, can the editor of the Times inform us what Mr. Muhler's opinions are, in relation to the admission of foreigners? We have been told by some of that gentleman's constrymen, that he is in principle a strong whig, and has often contended that no more foreigners ought to be allowed to come to this country, as they cause too much competition, reduce the profits of those already established in business. We do not know that this is the fact; but there are Germans who say they have heard Mr. Muhler make such remarks. If so, it accounts at once for his nomination by the whigs. They support him because on the native question he agrees with them; and they hope to get the votes of the naturalised citizens, because he is by birth a foreigner. The scheme was very well devised unfortunately the naturalized citizens are not quite so easily duped.

Daguerreotypes.—Mr. Foster has taken quite a large number of likenesses since his arrival in this city, and has we believe given entire satisfaction to all who have put his talents in requisition. There is a delicacy and naturalness about this gentleman's miniatures that we have rarely seen equalled, and we therefore recommend all who wish real good likenesses to give him a call. His stay here will be but short—perhaps only a week or two longer. His room is over B. Mason's store.

☞ The Times either cannot or will not give any reason why we should not claim the election of 14 democratic members of Congress out of 15 in Virginia, as a democratic triumph. The editor seems to have some vague and indefinite idea that all southern members of Congress are as a matter of course in favor of slavery, and will support Gen. Taylor in his efforts to sustain the "peculiar institution," and therefore we have no right to claim the election of democrats as a democratic triumph. If this is not what he means will he please explain himself?

We have seen a letter from an old citizen of Indiana in Oregon speaking strongly of the incompetency of Gen. Lane to acquit himself creditably as Governor of the Territory. The General must be particularly careful to undertake none but easy duties. He must imitate the policy of the poor speller, who, in writing letters, took care to put nothing but easy words in them.—Louisville Journal.

We can scarcely believe that any old citizen of Indiana, at least any one acquainted with Gen. Lane, ever wrote such a letter to the Louisville Journal. Gen. Lane is well known to possess in an eminent degree that indomitable energy and decision of character, and that keen perception of right and wrong, so eminently necessary in a governor of a territory situated as Oregon is. The ridiculous charge of incompetency is put forth as an excuse—a "cause"—for Gen Taylor, who doubtless intends to remove him as soon as he dare. It is inconceivably ludicrous to hear any one who professes to believe that Taylor is competent to discharge the duties of President of the United States, or to follow in the footsteps of the "earlier Paesidents," contend that Lane is incompetent to acquit himself creditably as Governor of Oregon. Few except the incorrigible editor of the Louisville Journal would have the hardihood to make the assertion.

THE CHOLERA.— We find the following communication in regard to the cholera, and a simple and, as is believed, infallible remedy for it, in an exchange. We cannot of course vouch for the infallibility of the remedy, but the arguments adduced in its favor and the experiments tried certainly appear plausible, and as the remedy is simple and cannot do any harm, if it does no good, we think it at least worthy of trial. The remedy, it will be seen, is simply to make pills, composed of three parts of sulphur and one of charcoal: one to be taken every two hours.

The citizens of Chicago, at which place the disease was raging, were so elated at the success of the remedy and its apparent infallibility, that they illuminated the city.

DEAR SIR:—In compliance with the wishes of my friend, Dr. J. H. Bird, I have made the following brief synopsis of a letter from him, sent to me for publication in the North Western Medical and Surgical Journal, which, together with the few additional remarks which I have made, you will please publish, in order that the members of the medical profession, and the public generally, may have the benefits to be derived from what is supposed to be a newly discovered remedy for the cholera.

The facts stated in the letter referred to above are briefly as follows:

About six months since Dr. Bird and myself were led into a conversation on the effect of atmospheric influences in producing epidemics, from reading an article from a German chemist in one of our periodicals, in which it was contended that influenza depended upon the presence of ozone, and that the severity and number of the attacks, as shown by chemical analysis, was only in proportion to the amount of this substance in the atmosphere.—Taking this statement in connection with the fact that cholera is generally preceded by influenzas, as shown by its history, we were led to the conclusion that both diseases might be dependant upon the same influence, modified in a degree according to the greater or less quantity of this deleterious agent present in the atmosphere at the time. The next step in the investigation was to determine what agent would counteract the influence, and destroy the deleterious properties of ozone.—The accurate chemical knowledge of Dr. Bird enabled him to suggest at once the well known substance of sulpher, as possessing the property of acting upon it in such a manner as to neutralize its influence.

In searching for facts to support this conclusion, it was found that cholera had never prevailed in the vicinity of sulphur springs, or in situations where this substance abounds;—hence the conclusion that sulphur might be, and probably was the antidote for cholera.

In one of our recent Medical Journals, an article appeared describing the manner of detecting ozone in the atmosphere, thus supplying the means of determining whether or not it was present at the very time the cholera was beginning to make its appearance among us.

Dr. Bird's experiments as well as those made subsequently by himself and by Drs. Bird. Blany, and myself from day to day, since that time, show that ozone is present in our atmosphere, and that the amount is in proportion to the severity of the disease from time to time. About a week since Dr. Bird determined to try the effects of sulphur on himself and others troubled, as nearly all have been more or less of late, with uneasy sensations, slight pains, &c., in all the digestive organs. The result was entirely satisfactory, so much so that Dr. Bird came immediately to my office and requested me as a friend to test its efficacy in my practice, but to say nothing to others in regard to the ingredients used until facts should justify its public announcement as a discovery. The beneficial effects resulting from its use in my practice was such as to convince me at once of its utility in the class of cases described above. During the last few days Drs. Bird, Blany and myself have continued to use this apparently simple remedy to the exclusion of nearly all others in all cases with cholera symptoms. The result has been wonderful. All the premonitory symptoms such as pain, a sense of fulness, unnatural movements, slight diarrhœa, &c., have uniformly yielded at once to a single dose of three to four grains of sulphur.

In cases where either cramps, diarrhœa or vomiting have been present, and in fact where all these symptoms have existed in conjunction, the use of sulphur, in the above named doses every three or four hours, has had the effect to ameliorate the patien'ts condition, at once, and when used in a few hours to dissipate entirely choleric symptoms.

So far as its efficacy has been tested in the worst stages of collapse, most satisfactory results have been obtained. In two or three cases of the kind the effect of the remedy has been to bring back pulse to the wrist, restore warmth to the surface and stop the profuse diarrhœa and vomiting. In truth, the results obtained so far, have been such as to convince all of us, who administered it and witnessed its effects that if any remedy deserves the appellation, this is the specific for cholera.

It having been determined to make this public statement, it is expected in return that no hasty conclusions will be made, either for or against what appears to be a proposition to accomplish much by very simple means.

Although the results, so far as obtained, in a short time, and by a few individuals, seem to justify our conclusions, it is hoped that physicians will continue to depend on what they consider the most efficient practice, in bad cases of cholera until they shall have tested the matter themselves and formed their own conclusions; and also, that whatever may be the confidence of individuals in this or any other remedies, they will not depend upon their own judgment in any case, even of slight symptoms, whenever it is possible to consult their physicians.

It is suggested by Dr. Bird that a combination of powdered charcoal, one part to four of sulphur, has seemed to make the remedy more efficient.

FROM CALIFORNIA.—Emeralds and diamonds are reported to have been found at the mines; one of the former was found as large as a hen's egg, and $170.000 was demanded for it. There are but fifty women at San Francisco—twenty of them are Americans.—The U. S. sloop-of-war Dale left on the 20th of March for the United States, with $200,000 in gold dust. Gen. Smith was at San Francisco with several officers. Three men have been executed at the mines for stealing a horse. Among the passengers is the Rev. Walter Colton. The U. S. transport ships Iowa, Rome, and Gen Taylor had arrived at Monterey with troops

Parrott, U. S. consul, left Mazatlan on the 10th of April, and arrived at New York yesterday. He has $40.000 in gold dust and estimates the amount of gold to be obtained yet at the placers the present year at $30,000.000. Three or four new quicksilver and two silver mines have been discovered. Platinium is known to exist in considerable quantities.—Diamonds of the size of hens' eggs have been found in Sacramento valley. A volunteer who had built a frame house offered to rent it to Gen. Smith for $18.000 and gave him five days to consider. The crews of Oregon and California steamers received $100, and cooks $150 per month.

Whig abuse of Free soilers.—The Decatur Clarion makes a very uncalled for attack upon John W. Wright, the free soil candidate for Lieutenant Governor. The object is too transparent to need answer or comment. The free soilers will doubtless appreciate the Clarion's reckless misstatements in their true light. The paper says:

"This John W. Wright above referred to, bears the character, among those who know him, and we can point to one who has known him long, of a graceless scamp. He is the man who a few years ago, while holding the responsible post of President Judge, attempted to swindle the settlers on the Miami lands out of their pre-emptions, and came near losing his life for it."

It is well known by all who know anything about the affair alluded to, that Mr. John W. Wright was among the first to discover and most active in DEFEATING the attempted fraud. Austin W. Morris, chief manager of the Whig party in this State, played the part which the Clarion attempts to force upon Mr. Wright.—State Sentinel.

INDEPENDENCE IN HUNGARY.—It has been announced in the foreign intelligence already published, that the Hungarian Diet had deposed the House of Hapsburg. On the 14th of April the National Representatives met together in the great Protestant Church of Debreczin. (The Magyars and a large portion of other Hungarians belong to the German Reformed and Lutheran Churches.) The public square was filled with an immense crowd of armed men. Kossuth, to whom was entrusted the reading of the decree of deposition, appeared before the Assembly, and read the following propositions for the sanction of its members:

In the name of the Hungarian nation:

1. The independence of Hungary and Transylvania, which is legally united to her, as well as their annexed dependencies, is proclaimed. Hungary is declared a free and independent European State. The integrity of her territory is inviolable.

2. The House of Hapsburg-Lorranie having, with its own hands, violated the pragmatic sanction by its treason and felony by the war it has kindled against the Hungarian nation, by its attempts at dismembering the Hungarian territory in endeavoring to separate Transylvania and Croatia from Hungary, by its assaults upon the free and independent existence of the Hungarian Empire, has perjured itself, and is deposed from the throne of Austria.

3. The deposition and banishment of the House of Hapsburg is proclaimed in the name of the Hungarian nation.

4. In asserting her natural and inalienable rights, and entering into the family of the European States, as a free and independent nation, Hungary declares she will preserve peace and friendship, so long as her rights are not invaded, with all other nations, and principally with those who formerly were under the same sovereign as herself, as well as the neighboring empires of the Turkey and Italian States, and that she desires to contract with them alliances based on a community of interests.

5. The form of government will be established by the National Assembly. But until the fundamental principles of the constitution shall have been determined, the country, in all its extent, will be governed by a President and Ministry, on his responsibility and that of the Ministers named by him.

The reading of this decree was received with unbounded enthusiasm, and it was immediately voted by the Assembly without a dissenting voice. On the motion of one of the members of the Diet, Kossuth was unanimously named President of the Government, and the members passed a vote expressing the confidence of the country in his integrity, and thanking him in its behalf. On the same day, the Chamber of Magnates, under the Presidency of Sigismond Perenyi, adopted the decree of the Diet with equal unanimity and enthusiasm.

The Cup of Tantalus.

The editor of the New York Mirror, who was a candidate for the office of Marshal of New York, tells the "whole story" of his aspirations and disappointment "in as few words as possible." He was an original supporter of General Taylor. On the day after the presidential election, a distinguished whig of the city accosted him with these words: "Fuller, you must be marshal. It is the best office in the city; everybody says you are entitled to it, and the whigs will all go in for you. General Taylor knows what you have done for him, and of course you will only have to say that you will accept it." Mr. Fuller consented to be considered as a candidate. His success was considered so certain, that "one man went so far as to guaranty our appointment, provided we would consent to divide the salary with him! Another, who wanted the office for a personal friend, agreed to enter into bonds to pay us four thousand dollars a year for the next four years on the condition that we would withdraw in his favor to insure his success!"—The most friendly credentials were offered him; but they were respectfully declined;—as, says he, "we did not deem it necessary to offer 'certificates of character,' after the grateful letters and messages we had been honored with from General Taylor." The next scene of the drama was his visit to Washington, to witness the inaugural and congratulate the old Hero; but here an unwelcome spectacle presented itself, though any man tolerably well acquainted with the springs of whig politics might have foreseen it would have come to pass:

"Before the President had taken the oath of office, it became apparent that a regular scramble for the "loaves and fishes' was about to take place, and that the mania for office was spreading like a contagion through the whole infected District of Columbia. To our great surprise we encountered on the ground some five or six competitors for the marshalship of the southern district, all of whom were strongly fortified and backed up with 'certificates from their last employers.' These half-dozen, like Falstaff's men in buckram, soon quadrupled in number; and each, in the hope of insuring his own success, concentrated his opposition upon the most prominent of his rivals. We have reason to believe, that during the last three months, about the purlieus of the departments, we have been the best abused man in the nation. But let that pass for the present."

The scene began to deepen in interest. After two or three very pleasant interviews, and a brief note addressed to the President, "offering ourself to his consideration as a candidate for the office of marshal, we were advised in reply, through a gentleman belonging to General Taylor's southern suite, to make a formal application to the proper department, accompanied by a few letters that might be filed in justification of the appointment." We presume this reply came from the President himself, through his confidential agent.—Upon this hint, like Othello, Mr. Fuller spoke. He obtained several letters from gentlemen of the highest character and longest purses, as well as testimonials from many of the "most eminent politicians in the Empire State and city," as well as a petition from seventy-two of the leading members of the bar, among whom were Messrs. Maxwell and Hall.—Several members of Congress, too, joined in the most earnest recommendations. A strong letter in his behalf was addressed to Mr. Ewing, by "a gentleman who had been offered a place in the cabinet;" (Mr. Truman Smith, we presume.)

The Vice President of the United States gave us the "comfortable assurance of hope," in the following words: "When your case comes up, Mr. Fuller, I shall do my part for you." But we will dwell no longer upon the "documentary strength" which proved to be "perfect weakness" in the decisive hour.

It is our private opinion that not a single member of the cabinet troubled himself to read any portion of the papers we have above alluded to, with the except on of the President himself, who "read them all attentively." [Fifty-one letters, signed by one hundred and fifty-seven names.]

But it would not all do. Tantalus had the cup to his lip, but the waters, after they rose, receded from his taste. "How (says Mr. Fuller,) the appointment of Mr. Tallmadge was effected, it is not our purpose to inquire.—We left our application in General Taylor's hands, with the special request that he should withdraw the papers in case he could not make the appointment. He did so; and consequently, at the time the appointment was made we were not a candidate for the office."

He accompanies this expose with various testimonies from the newspapers, and finally begs of his friends no longer to "stop [him] in the streets to condole with us on our disappointment, or to rail against the powers that be."

We shrewdly suspect that Mr. Fuller, amid his other "consolations to the afflicted," has companions enough to sympathize in his disappointment. The fact is, the President has held out hopes to several of his friends that he could not carry out. The old saying is, that "where there is a will, there is a way." But the doubt is whether the President has confidence enough in his own qualifications to form a will; or if he had, whether the rules of the cabinet proceeding would leave him a way to carry out his own wishes. His cabinet frequently overrule him; and the rumor is, outvote him. It is said that Mr. Van Rensselaer was promised the post office of Albany, but he failed. General S. S. Smith, of Philadelphia, also underwent the fate of Tantalus; and there is little doubt that Mr. Collins Lee had an assurance in black and white of the President's wishes in his behalf, and yet he was cut out of the post office of Baltimore. This is, indeed, an extraordinary spectacle;—but it is true as it is strange. Curious enough that the President of the United States should reduce himself to the embarrassing necessity of sacrificing his own wishes to those of his cabinet!

Such is the state to which the impatient and politic whigs have reduced the President of their choice, and the dignity of the executive. The secret consists in the selection of a military man who is an available candidate, but entirely disqualified and utterly unavailable as the first magistrate of a great republic. The Athens (Ga.) Banner remarks with great force, yet without being aware of the length to which things are proceeding in the capital:

In a republic, the chief executive magistrate should be a man of sufficient capacity to rely upon himself. He should be above the intrigues and corruptions of cabinets, and be able to impress his own views upon the administration of the government, as far as the forms of the constitution will permit him. We want no "mediocrity" of abilities, no "docilsty" in being led by cabinets. That is not the feast to which we invite our Presidents. We want a bold and energetic Executive—one who understands the constitution and the practical details of government—one who will take his stand upon the constitution, and preserve its balances in defiance of cabinet influences; such a man as was General Jackson—one who will "take the responsibility,"—one who considers himself as the representative of the people, and will carry out their views in despite of the suggestions of men, who not being elected by the people, can claim no participation in the government except that of mere counsel. In a monarchy it is often fortunate that the cabinet is the king—in a republic the President should always be the President.

General Taylor too large for the Breeches of the "earlier President."—The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, gives an account of the visit of the latest President to the Patent Office, to see the breeches of the Father of his country. What the "second Washington" there saw and what he said, is thus mentioned:

"Gen. Taylor is said to have lately visited the Patent Office, to take a particular view as well as the precise dimensions of Washington's celebrated inexpressibles, very properly preserved in that high place, by a nation's gratitude. Gen. Taylor examined them very closely, but after a pause, observed to one of the by-standers, that he should be afraid to put them on, without lengthening them in the legs; a thing the more surprising, as Washington was a great man with long legs, while his own, (Gen. Taylor's legs,) were rather below the common size. The enigma was, of course, explained by the stating that "in the days of Washington, the President of the United States had neither enemies nor pantaloons, and was therefore ready to show both his hands and his legs."

The old General took the tight-kneed pair of inexpressibles of Gen. Washington for a pair of pants, and we suppose, chuckled amazingly over the evidence thus presented that the last of the 'early Presidents' was bigger than the first. Where was Col. Bliss?—O. Statesman.

From the Louisville Democrat.

I have no Friends to Reward—No Enemies to Punish."—Z. Taylor, 1848.

SCENE IN THE PRIVATE CHAMBER OF GEN. TAYLOR, AFTER AN EXCITING INTERVIEW WITH HIS CABINET.

General Taylor, solus, [Soliloquising.]—For what purpose was I called from the tented field and plumed troop—aye, from the "pomp, pride and circumstance of glorious war," to preside in so exalted a civil station? Am I fitted by nature—surely not by education—to perform the duties of so important an office? I remember well; "tell it not in Gath." It was once said by the whigs, (by-the-bye, when I speak of whiggery, now-a-days, I perceive a strong smell of buttermilk) that when Old Hickory was first nominated for the Presidency, he exclaimed—"Is it possible!" If astonishment was great in his case, what in mine? Little did I think, when the cry of the blood-hounds, in the everglades of Florida, was heard by me, that ever Destiny, though as capricious as the field-kissing breezes of Heaven, could have wrought so unlikely an event as my elevation—that ever the magic of war, and the blaze of war's artillery, could have exorcised me from the depths of obscurity.

But what brings the blush mantling to my cheek—a cheek hitherto tinged with nought of shame—is, that I should have been made the wilting instrument of those stereotyped political harpies, who have so often assembled around each victim, and set their saw-like teeth in the vitals of his fame; and that I, treading in the footstepe of old Harrison, should have been dictated to, and made to write to many silly letters to beguile the democracy and cheat them of their votes—the people—who, after all, in peace and in war, are the bone and sinew of the land.

Before I became the political prisoner I am, how towering was my character as a warrior—how the pulse of the American people throbbed when the echo of my victories reverberated from Fort Isabel to the blood-stained field of Buena Vista: aye, then ambition touched my soul, and eagle-like, it rose upon pinions of imaginary glory to the skies.

[ENTER A SERVANT.]

Servant.—General Taylor, a petition from C. D. He says he voted for you.

[ENTER ANOTHER SERVANT.]

General Taylor—(Aside.)—A plague upon these hungry miscreants! Is it for this I was preferred to this office—that I should wither the lawrels I have won at the cannon's mouth to gratify these blunderers? Conservative, are they? If Mr. Clay's views were correct and conservative, why did they not stick to him, and rather fail in a good cause, and on the side of patriotism, than compromise with availability at this expense? They could not elect Mr. Clay, therefore they will take a popular man, a military chieftain. Spoils! it is. Aye, there the old serpent of whiggery shakes his rattle in the garden of our country.

What must the country and after ages think of me, who confessedly, can only offer honesty?—"Old Zack" honest? That I should play the Brennus of old, and heard these Vandals in their onslaught upon the government! I, who could not be silenced by the legions of war on Mexico's plains, to be dictated to by these Jacks of the Cabinet! [Aloud.] Tell them—please go to the Cabinet. [Aside.] I have often ridden the skin off Old Whitey's back, but this Cabinet makes my skin fly faster than his.—Well may I say about myself and "Whitey," in the language of Mazeppa, that this Cabinet

"Scarce can wait till one or both should die,
Ere their repast begun."

[ENTER A WHIG FRIEND.]

Friend.—Aye, General Taylor, how do you do? I hope General Taylor, that in you we see a second Washington; an administration resembling that of the earlier Presidents; a bowing to the will of Congress by the President; no veto, except in cases clearly constitutional; no proscription for opinion's sake; no friends to reward—nor enemies to punish; in other words, how refreshing it will be to see the old ship of the Union moored in so safe a harbor.

General Taylor, [coughing and greatly troubled with sneezing.]—I hope so. [Aside.] How farsical!—I lie, you lie, he lies—we lie, they lie; how they go it—all lie. Methinks I dream—Am I Zachary Taylor? Perhaps I mistake. And these office-seekers are my blood-hounds, and I the poor hunted Indian of Florida, amidst fatigue and heat, struggling for life. Shades of the immortal Washington! I a second Washington! O, daddy, what can I boast of? Let me see:

1st. Am I an orator? The scene at the Louisville dinner, got up by forced loans from my friends, the people, by the Council, will show. Was not that rich? My good friends would make me speak there, and O what burst of eloquence flooded the banquet—insomuch that one of my raw admirers said, "General, don't read any speech—you can't come it; give us Old Whitey."

2d. I don't swear, Washington-like, except when I am excited, and then I go it with the blasts of Æolus.

3d. No friends to reward—no enemies to punish, except that Washington-like, I have turned out more men from office than half a dozen early Presidents.

And now I am reminded of that great orator and statesman, Henry Clay—"Harry of the West." I am constrained to say that that great man would have adorned the Presidency. Much better would it have been for me to have hearkened to the monitions of prudence and good sense, and have reposed upon the conquests so valiantly won upon the plains of Mexico. How often has it been that the noble Clay, with giant power, rising up in the halls of Congress, with the power of a moral Behemoth, in the planitude of his intellectual power, with form dilated and glowing eye, like the eagle of the Alps, stricken and borne his foe to his eyrie. Then his fame, like the red-mouthed artillery of war, resounded from shore to shore.

Well, I have this consolation—the canvass has cost me no money. I can count 250 negroes, and some quarter of a million of "yellow boys."

"Thus, O Fortune, thou hast saved thy friend,
And to thee my suple knee I bend."

Exit.

Seat of Government in Canada.—Montreal is to continue to be the Capital of the Canadas. Lord Elgin's reply to the address for its removal is as follows:

GENTLEMEN: The subject of your address invoking the exercise of the Royal prerogative, in a matter involving very serious considerations of public policy, should receive my best attention. I must not conceal from you, however, that, in my opinion, so serious a change in that policy ought not to be lightly adventured upon; and that, above all, the pressure of an apparent temporary necessity for that change, must not be allowed to exercise an undue influence upon the adoption of it.

It is a part of the Royal prerogative to decide on the most appropriate place for the seat of Government.

The Bank of Massilon.—The brokers in the employ of the State Banks are paying their respects to the Massilon Bank at the rate of from five to ten thousand dollars daily. Its charter expires in about a year. We have no doubt that it will break before many months. The State Banks are pursuing all the old banks with venom and bitterness, determined to break them if possible.—Seneca Advertiser.

Is that one of the "chartered privileges" of the State Banks? Or is it the legitimate business of the concern?—Dayton Empire.

Both! The Banks claim a "charter large as any wind to" burst up whom they please, and then,——burst up themselves! The "legitimate business of the concern" is to remove all rivals, get all it can, and keep all it gets.—Ohio Statesman.

The Tariff and the People.—Let any man look at the causes of things under the operation of the Tariff of 1842, or during the existence of the Bank of the United States, says the Pennsylvanian, and he will convince himself with little trouble, of this great and important truth—that a dollar will purchase nearly twice as many of the necessaries of life now, as the same amount of money would command during either of the above periods. The low prices of sugar, coffee, tea, and muslins, and other necessaries, are in effect substantial additions to the daily wages of the laboring man.—Toledo Republican.

A nice young man by the name of Eagleman, who was a 'dashing beau' some two years since at Fort Wayne, and who at the same time took captive many a fair lady's heart, and appropriated to his own use money that belonged to his employers, was recently appointed to 'do the State some service,' in one of her public institutions at Jeffersonville. Madison Courier.

General William J. Worth.

The death of this gallant officer, who died at San Antonio de Bexar on the 7th instant, has been fully confirmed. In noticing the death of General Worth, the New Orleans Picayune says that "he had been taken seriously sick, as we learn, only the day previous, though he had been quite unwell with a diarrhœa from the time he left New Orleans, and continued so until he arrived at San Antonio, which was but a few days before his death.—He was far from being well when he passed through the city, and was so much indisposed at Indianola that the boat was detained there on his account, before proceeding to Port Lavaca. It is presumed, though not certainly known, that the disease of which General Worth, died was the cholera."

In the death of Gen. Worth, the military service has lost one of its ablest Generals—the country one of its most devoted patriots.

When the war of 1812 broke out, young Worth entered the army as a private. A memorial written by him to save from punishment a young friend who had enlisted at the same time, first brought him to the notice of General, then Colonel Scott, who gave him the appointment of private secretary, and afterwards procured for him a commission of a Lieutenant. In consequence of his bravery at the battle of Chippewa, young Worth was brevetted to a Captaincy, and at Lundy's Lane won his commision as a Major. In the Florida war, for his gallantry, he was brevetted a Brigadier General. For his daring courage and military sagacity at Monterey, where he was assigned the task of taking the heights on the Saltillo road—storming the Bishop's palace and then sweeping into town to the assistance of General Taylor, he was brevetted a Major General.

At the battle of Molino del Rey, where, at the head of his command, Gen. Worth carried the supposed impregnable works of the enemy, though with a vast loss. At Cerro Gordo, Chapultepec, Cherubusco and at the storming of the gates of Mexico, Worth participated, and won increased honors.

His daring bravery made him the idol of the men, and he was named by some the 'Murat of the army,' in whose reckless daring he was the counterpart, but was more generally known by the name of the 'Knight of the Waving Plume.' At the storming of the Bishop's Palace at Monterey, in the midst of the carnage, when the soldiers were struck down by the incessant iron hail of the Mexican batteries, Worth seeing a momentary hesitation among the troops that never before recoiled from danger, dismounted his charger, and placing his cap with its tall plume on his sword, and raising it high in air, thus led them to the assault and capture of the fortress—his plume answering the purpose of that of Henry of Navarre, at the battle of Ivry, when he told his soldiers if they lost their standard to rally round his white plume.

Gen. Worth, by the cooler heads of the army, was said to be brave even unto rashness. He however was apparently rash when rashness was called for, as was the case at Monterey and Molino del Rey.

Brave as he was, and exposed as his life had been during the various battles in which he has participated, Gen. Worth escaped all to die in his bed—to be struck down almost at a moments warning by disease, and far from his family, to breath his last. He was no common man, and had elements of greatness in him which would have placed him among the first in any situation in life. But disease has done that which the enemies of his country failed to do; and the brave and the chivalrous Worth is gone to the bourne from whence no traveller returns, and the nation mourns his loss.—Ohio Statesman.

If the reading public will put their faith in any of the advertisements which appear in our columns, let them certainly do so in the Great American Remedy Notice. Dr. C. C. Vaughn's Vegetable Lithontriptic Mixture, which has a conspicuous place on our business side of the paper. Some months since we stated that we should publish a number of testimonials in favor of this medicine, we have done so, more has come under our knowledge, did space permit, we could tell most strange stories of this medicine; it has exceeded in virtue all other preparations of any age or country, and is destined to destroy the whole system of practice as adopted by the Faculty; but reader call upon Agents and get a pamphlet.

THE IMMENSE

Mineral Wealth of California

HAS induced thousands to abandon the comforts of home and brave the hardships and horrors of a trip across the Rocky Mountains, or the perils of a passage round Capehorn, all of which may now be avoided, and as fair a chance found of making money at home. It is an old adage that a penny saved is two-pence earned; there is no trouble in making money here, the only thing is, to keep it after it is made. This may in a great measure be accomplished by buying at

B. MASON'S

Celebrated Cheap Store,

where goods can be had so cheap that none who make all their purchases there can fail to save enough to make themselves rich, and that too without running the risks necessary to pick up gold on the Sacramento.

A large stock of SPRING & SUMMER GOODS has just been received, including a beautiful assortment of

Fancy Dress Goods.

Silks, Barages, Linen Lawns Linen, Poplins, Lawns, Ginghams Lawns, White Lawns, Swiss Muslin, Plaid Mulls and Jaconetts, Victoria Lawns, Nankeens, Calicoes, &c. White and Red Crape, Embroidered Crape, Berage, and Silk SHAWLS. Parasols—a splendid assortment. Fans of every variety. Ladies' and Gents' Gloves. Legloorn, Palm Leaf, and Straw Hats. Besides all kinds of staple goods, such as Shirtings, Sheetings, Checks, Drillings, and all sorts of Summer Wear.

It is needless to say more than that the stock now on hand at this establishment fully equals all former ones, and is offered at even less than Mason's unrivalled low prices. Call and satisfy yourselves.

The stock of GROCERIES is large, and all of the choicest quality—nothing else is ever kept, and they will be sold as Cheap or CHEAPER than the inferior articles offered in some of the blowing gas-houses in this city. DYE STUFFS—Madder, Indigo, Alum, &c.

QUEENSWARE.—A large and most beautiful assortment of the latest styles.

HARDWARE.—A full stock, which is offered very low.

Every thing in the shape of BOOTS AND SHOES, from a Stogie Boot to a Baby's Shoe—including Misses' Gaiters, Slippers, Walking Shoes, &c., and Gents' Calf Boots, Water Proof Boots, Shoes, Bootees, &c. &c. at very reduced prices.

HATS AND CAPS in great variety—from a Broadway Bun Ton to a shilling cap.

STATIONERY.—He has also a large stock of Stationery—including School Books, Cap and Letter Paper, Envelopes, &c. &c.

Also an endless variety of NOTIONS—such as Steel Beads, Clasps, and Purse Twists; Combs in great variety;—Traveling Bags; Pen and Pocket Knives, and every thing else that is neat, tasty, fashionable or desirable.

SALT & WHITE FISH by the bbl. NAILS & GLASS.

In short, buyers will find any thing and every thing they can ask for, and for CASH can have such bargains as they have never dreamt of. All kinds of PRODUCE, Deer Skins &c. taken in exchange for Goods.

NEW ARRIVAL

At the Ohio Cash Store.

AYLSWORTH & BORDEN are now receiving their SPRING & SUMMER GOODS suitable for the market, which have been selected with a view to durability and fast colors. Having purchased many of them from first hands, thereby saving one profit, they will be sold at a small advance, and even cheaper than others are selling inferior goods. We are desirous that all goods sold by us should give entire satisfaction, as it regards durability and prices. The goods have been purchased in New York, and not in Cincinnati where several of our merchants have made their purchases, and we are confident that we can sell goods in Fort Wayne as cheap as they do in Cincinnati. This is an important fact to be remembered by those who purchase goods in this city. Our stock is new and fresh, we have a great variety of Daguerreotype Portraits and Family Groups.

THE subscriber's DAGUERREAN Room is now ready for the reception of visitors; and Ladies and Gentlemen who wish to secure a good Daguerreotype likeness, are respectfully invited to call. By this new and beautiful art, an elegant likeness—a truthful impression of the living countenance is secured, and of a durability that time cannot affect. Those who have not seen the latest improvements in the art will be surprised at the beauty of his pictures.

Portraits, Daguerreotypes and Engravings accurately copied. Minatures neatly put up in lockets, breastpins and wristlets.

Instructions carefully and faithfully given in the art. Apparatus and materials furnished.

Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to visit the Rooms and examine the specimen, whether they desire their likenesses or not—their visits will always be welcome.

Pictures taken without regard to weather

Ladies are recommended to dress in figured, plaid or dark material, avoiding white or light blue. A shawl or scarf gives an easy, graceful appearance. For Gentlemen—a black or figured vest and cravat, with the shirt bosom not too much exposed. For Children—plaid, striped or figured dresses.

GATES, STEDMAN & COMPANY, 116 Nassau St., New York, are now publishing

THE POPULAR CYCLOPEDIA

OF MODERN DOMESTIC MEDICINE,

By KEITH IMRAY, M. D., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh.

This work gives a clear and concise idea of the nature of the distinctive symptoms, of the premonitory signs of diseases, of their predisposing causes, and of the methods of their treatment recommended by the most distinguished physicians.

The modes of employing the medicines in general use are faithfully described; as are also the diet and regimen necessary under various diseases, and during convalescence.

Diet, Atmosphere, Temperature, Bathing, Climate, Clothing and Exercise are also specially treated upon.

The publishers of the American Edition prefix to Dr. Imray's work, short illustrated, and very valuable Treatises upon Anatomy, Physiology and Surgery; also Directions for the Treatment of the Sick, Management of the Sick Room, Preparation of Food for the Sick, &c. &c.

Many valuable articles have been furnished by the courtesy of medical gentlemen of the United States.

The entire volume, with its full Index, Tables of Doses, &c., will prove, it is confidently believed, a most valuable book for Family use.

The work will be completed in twelve weekly numbers, 25 cents each, forming one large 8vo. volume of about 1000 pages.

Stoves. Stoves. Stoves!

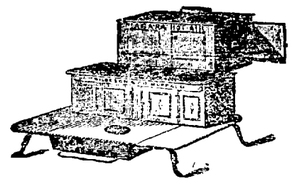
MORE of the latest styles and most improved patents in the way of HOT AIR COOKING STOVES, are now arriving at the Oil Stand.

SIGN OF THE PAD LOCK.

From the following descriptions it will be seen that exertion is the proprietor of this establishment is constantly making to supply the public with the latest improvements in the line of his business.

I've now offers for sale the splendid 4 Boiler

Niagara Hot Air Cooking STOVE.



Warranted to economise fifty per cent in the amount of fuel it uses, and the time it takes to boil or bake, over any other stove in use in this or any other country.

The next is the same man's patent of 3 Boiler

Niagara Hot Air Cooking Stove,

which takes in nearly three feet wood, with all the advantages of the other. (See plate above.

These Stoves took the first premium at a recent fair of the Erie County agricultural society, New York.

Next comes the good old EMPIRE HOT AIR COOKING STOVE, which is so well known in this country, with two ovens, one being portable. Also, the

Hathaway Hot Air Cooking Stove,

the excellent qualities of which will be readily testified to, by a number of families in Fort Wayne, who have them in use,—the proprietor's own family being one of that number. The next is another new stove called the

Knickerbacker Hot Air

which is now having a great run in the East, and no doubt will run quite as fast out West, as soon as its seen and its qualities understood.

Then comes the Premium Cooking Stoves all sizes;

The Noncondensing Hot Air Parlor Stoves;
The Ten and Seven Plate Stoves;

All of them are made of the best and heaviest Castings, and are

Warranted to stand fire.

without breaking.

After these, comes the Russia Sheet Iron Parlor Office Stoves, made to order, any size that may be wanted.

TIN WARE manufactured and sold wholesale at Eastern prices. Country merchants will find it to their advantage to call here for their supplies of this article.

Tin Plate, Sheet Copper Sheet Iron and Block Tin kept constantly on hand and for sale to the trade, at the New York Hardware Store, sign of the Pad Lock.

No Cure No Pay.

I Would inform the world that I have a Remedy for curing or healing Ruptures, without any pain in the operation, and without even seeing the place thus ruptured. Some of the wise and learned may laugh and scorn at the proposition, but don't be too fast, this is no new fiction, my father has practiced the Remedy over forty years in the East, and I have cured three persons myself. I give this to the public, because I believe it to be my duty to do all the good I can to my fellows. WM. IBA.

And I would also request editors of papers in the Country to make a short paragraph of the above in their sheets, and by so doing they will confer a blessing on some of their patrons. 6m30

Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company,

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING BEEN appointed an agent for said company, is authorized to make every kind and nature of insurance appertaining to Life Risks, for a certain number of years or for life, grant annuities, and confer endowments.

The provisions of the charter of said company are peculiarly favorable to the assured—containing many important privileges, which experience has proved may be safely granted, and which are deemed superior to any heretofore offered in this country.

Married women may insure the lives of their husbands, secure from the demands of creditors, Creditors may insure their debtors, or debtors themselves, for the benefit of creditors.

The assured after a term of years, may at any time surrender the policy and receive its equitable value in cash.

The subject of Life Insurance is attracting much attention in the Eastern States, and commends itself to the favorable consideration of all, as by this means a comfortable support may be left to the wife and children when misfortune comes upon them, and the husband and father is taken from their embrace by the cold hand of death.

Pamphlets explanatory of the uses and benefits arising from Life Insurances, will be furnished those wishing to be insured.

There is no real occasion for sickness!

Dr. Ralph's Pills,

FOUNDED on the only principle on which a UNIVERSAL MEDICINE can safely and conscientiously be recommended to the world. They are fast superceding every other remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Acidity, Heartburn, Costiveness, all Impurities of the blood, Biliousness, Liver Diseases, Fever & Ague, the diseases of Western Climate, &c. The reason is obvious—they act in PERFECT ACCORDANCE WITH NATURE.

Their operation is exceedingly mild and pleasant, and if taken in accordance with the directions, which are remarkably plain and clear.

THEY CANNOT FAIL TO CURE

and to perfectly prevent the use of every kind (see explanation of the new theory in the 'Ralphian' an invaluable paper which may be had gratis of the agents.) Their unexampled success in all the complaints of FEMALES, and those also attending pregnancy, is acknowledged by thousands.

NO FEMALE SHOULD BE WITHOUT THEM.

Testimonials of cures, of every disease the human system is liable to, often after all other means had failed, are consequently being received at the Central Office, N. Y. City.

Price 25 cents a box, with full directions, and Family packages at $1, (in which is much saving.)

J. B. Hanna, Fort Wayne, having been appointed general agent, will supply this celebrated medicine, wholesale and retail, on the same terms as at the Central Office.

June 13, 1848. y9

Read the following testimony from W. W. Steevens, principal of the Classical & Commercial Academy, Fort Wayne, Ind.:

"Having had repeated opportunities for the last fourteen years of witnessing the great benefits various persons have derived from the use of Doctor RALPH'S PILLS, and knowing Doctor J. RALPH to be a graduate of the University of Edinburg; a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, and of the Medical College of the State of New York; also a Physician of Long, Extensive and successful Practice, I cordially recommend said Pills to all who may be afflicted with diseases for which the Pills are recommended, believing they will perform all that is promised for them if the directions for using them be strictly followed.

W. W. STEEVENS.

Fort Wayne, July, 1848.

"DEAR SIR: In compliance with your request I would state that I have used Doctor RALPH'S PILLS in my family for something like ten years, and am satisfied that they are an excellent family Medicine. I have no doubt but that the use of them has at different times saved myself and family much sickness and expense.

HUGH MILLER."

DENTAL SURGERY.

DR. MEACHAM (Dentist) having been in the practice for 18 years in Ohio, and in the South, has concluded to locate in Fort Wayne, desires attending to the operations of repairing the teeth, such as cleaning, extracting, plugging, inserting, removing decay by files and cutters, &c., &c., will also attend to curing scurvy of the gums, diseased sockets and antrum. Scurvy is known by the gums bleeding easily, being spungy leaving the necks of the teeth bare, and finally the teeth become loose and drop out. This scurvy Dr. M. can effectually cure if taken in season. Exposed nerve can be destroyed with little or no pain. Offensive breath caused by diseased gums and sockets Dr. M. can effectually cure He has about 30 different instruments for extracting, which enables him to take out teeth with less pain and more safety than the usual method. Price of extracting, 25 to 50 cents for each tooth or separate root. Office over J. B. Shoaff's Drug Store, and under the Odd Fellow's Hall, on Calhoun street. Expense of the operations made known before operating, when desired. Work warranted.

THANKFUL for the favors of the past, would respectfully inform his old customers and the public generally that his Fall and Winter supplies in part arrived, and is still coming; so that by the close of navigation all demands for the season can be promptly filled.

STOVES.

We place the "IMPERIAL AIR TIGHT" first; because we consider them decidedly foremost in the way of all stoves.

The "UNITED STATES AIR TIGHT" is next, for many consider them equal, if not superior to those above—and with them may be classed the Washington and Troy Air Tights and the Quackenbos Air Tights, of Albany.

PREMIUM STOVES.

Among the different kinds of Premium Cooking Stoves we have the "Troy Virtuoso" to the excellent qualities of which all who have ever tried them will readily attest. We select them as the best premium stove in market, and the increased demand for them induced us to bring on a large assortment. We have also the common premiums from Buffalo and Cincinnati, and last though not least, the "Farmer," with no rusee or superficial ornaments, but so well recommended that any one wishing a stove can take it, and bring it back again if it does not work well. Last, & least in the Cooking line stands the great "Gentleman's" of Dayton, which we keep on hand for the especial benefit of those who prefer this to a better article.

Parlor Stoves of Cast or Sheet Iron, Hining Room Stoves Shop and Store Room Stoves of all varieties and sizes from a smelting house to a 16 by 19.

In connection with our Store trade we have added a small but well selected assortment of Castings and Hardware.

Consisting on the whole of all the most essential and necessary articles used by farmers and mechanics.

Our Tin and Copper business is still as busy as ever, and all hands ready, and happy to wait upon the ever-lovin' country thing in our line.

POETRY.

THE BEAUTY OF LIBERTY.

"In all things that have beauty, there is nothing to man more comely than Liberty."—MILTON

When the dance of the shadows,
At day-break is done,
And the cheeks of the morning
Are red with the sun,
When he sinks in laughery,
At eve, from the view,
And calls up the planet,
To blaze in the blue;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
More proud than the sight of a nation when free?

When the beautiful bend
Of the bow is above
Like a collar of light,
On the bosom of love—
When the moon in her windows
Is shining on high
Like a banner of silver
Hung out in the sky;
There is beauty—but earth has no beauty to see,
More proud than the form of nation when free,

In the depth of the darkness,
Unrarified in sun,
When the shadows are veiling
The breast of the blue;
When the voice of the tempest,
At midnight is still,
And the spirit of solitude
Sobs on the hill;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the breast-heaving brow of a nation when free?

In the breath of the morning,
When nature's awake,
And calls up the chorus
To shout in the brake;
In the voice of the echo,
Unbound in the woods;
In the warbling of streams
And the flowing of floods;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the thrice-hallowed sight of a nation when free?

When the striving of surges,
In rest on the main,
Like the charge of a column
Of plumes on the plain;
When the thunder is up
From his cloud-cradled sleep,
And the tempest is trending
The paths of the deep;
There is beauty—but where is the beauty to see,
Like the sun-brilliant brow of a nation when free?

THE HUSBAND TO HIS WIFE.
A PATHETIC APPEAL.

I ask thee not to yield thy love,
For this o'en now is mine;
I ask the not thy faith to prove,
Thy heart is truth's pure shrine;
Thou need'st not paint thee lily-fair,
Nor gild refined gold;
Nature hath limned a richness there
Which art can ne'er unfold.
But oh! I have one poor request,
Sanctioned by Gods and men,
Thy power can give to Love a zest,
Say will you grant it thee?
She smiled assent—"what is it life?
The secret now disclose!"—
Said he—"my own, my dearest wife,
Go WIPE THE BABY'S NOSE."

A BAD HABIT CURED.

BY T. S. ARTHUR.

One of the virtues peculiar to society in this country—and it may be to other countries, for aught we know—is a tender regard for the consciences of others. People are disposed to interpret St. Paul's injunction to the Philippians, "Look not every man on his own things, but every man, also, on the things of his neighbor," after the most literal fashion. We see this manifested in a great variety of ways, but in none more prominently than in the effort to make people pay due regard to the precept, "Of him that would borrow of thee, turn thou not away."

Mrs. Armand was the very personification of this virtue; and she took good care that none in her neighborhood suffered condemnation for lack of a living faith in the precept last quoted, as sundry careful housewives could testify.

Mr. Armand differed with his wife in some matters, and particularly in regard to the morality of her borrowing practices, and often recorded his protest against their continuance; the doing of which satisfied him more and more, each time it was repeated, that "when a woman will, she will, you may depend on't." A fair sample of the discussion held on the subject, may be seen in the following matrimonial passage of small arms, which occurred in consequence of the appearance on the table, one morning, of a strange looking Britannia ware coffee-pot.

'Where did that come from, Sarah?' was the natural inquiry of Mr. Armand, as his eye rested on this handsome addition to the appendages of the tea tray.

'Kitty melted the bottom off my coffee-pot yesterday, the careless thing,' replied Mrs. Armand, 'and it is not mended yet; and so I borrowed Mrs. Lovell's for this morning.'

'I wouldn't have done that,' said the husband.

'Why wouldn't you?' very pertinently inquired Mrs. Armand.

'Oh, because I wouldn't.'

'Give a reason. Men are always fierce enough for reasons.'

'Because I don't think it right to borrow other people's things, when we can do without them.'

'We couldn't do without a coffee-pot, could we?'

'Yes; I think so.'

'How, pray?'

'Rather than borrow, I would have made tea for breakfast, until our coffee-pot was mended.'

'A nice, grumbling time there would have been, if I had tried to put you off with a cup of tea.'

'I don't think I am such a grumbler as that, Sarah. I believe I am as easily satisfied as most men. I'm sure I would rather drink tea all my life than take coffee from a borrowed coffee-pot.'

'So much for trying to provide for your comfort,' said Mrs. Armand, in a complaining tone of voice.

'I never wish you to do wrong for the sake of securing my comfort,' returned her husband.

'Do wrong! Do you mean to say that it is wrong to borrow and lend?'

'It is wrong to borrow on every trifling occasion, for this is to be unjust to others, who are constantly deprived of the use or possession of such things as are their own.'

'I wouldn't like to live in a world as selfish as it would be, if made after your model,' said Mrs. Armand.

'No doubt it would be bad enough,' replied the husband; 'but I am sure borrowers would be scarce.'

'But what harm can my using Mrs. Lovell's coffee-pot for a single morning do, I would like to know?'

Mr. Armand answered this interrogatory, but however, conclusively enough to satisfy his wife. Mrs. Lovell's opinion on the subject being much more to the point, will best enlighten the reader, and so we will give that—

On the next day Mrs. Armand called in to pay her neighbors a visit.

'I haven't sent home your coffee-pot yet,' said she, during a pause in the conversation that followed her entrance. 'I told Kitty, yesterday, to take ours immediately and get it mended; but I found this morning that she had failed to do so. I never saw such a careless, forgetful creature in my life.'

It's no matter,' Mrs. Lovell forced herself to say, at the cost of a departure from the truth.

'Oh, I knew it was no difference, because you don't make coffee regularly,' responded Mrs. Armand; 'but, then, I never like to be using other people's things when I can help it. Besides, our Kitty is such a careless creature, that every thing she touches is in danger; and I'm afraid it might get injured. I noticed a little dent in the spout this morning.'

'Not a bad one,' said Mrs. Lovell, thrown a little off her guard by this admission. The tone in which she spoke expressed some anxiety.

'Oh, no, no,' replied Mrs. Armand quickly. 'You would hardly see it unless it were pointed out. But even for so trifling an injury I can assure you I scolded Kitty well. As soon as I go home, I will start her off with my coffee-pot, if she has not already taken it to the tinner's.'

Days passed, but the coffee-pot still remained in the possession of Mrs. Armand. In the meantime, Charley's new cloak of very fine light blue cashmere was finished, and as Mrs. Lovell was a little proud of her baby—what mother is not?—the cloak went out to take an airing, the baby inside of course, every day for a week afterwards.

One afternoon some friends came in, and Mrs. Lovell persuaded them to stay and spend the evening. Shortly after they arrived, a messenger came from Mrs. Armand, with a request for the loan of Charley's cloak, as the mother wanted to send her baby down to Jones' Hotel, that a friend of her's, who was passing through the city might see him.

Mrs. Lovell said, 'Very well,' and took from a drawer the dove-colored merino cloak that had suffered an eversole at the christening, and handed it to the girl who had come from Mrs. Armand.

In a few moments the girl returned with the cloak, and said—

'It isn't the one that Mrs. Armand wants. She says, please to let her have the blue one. She'll take good care of it.'

Mrs. Lovell took the dove-colored cloak, and turned with it to the drawer slowly, debating in her mind what she should do. She must either offend Mrs. Armand, or run the risk of having the new cloak, which cost ten dollars, besides her labor, spoiled as the other had been. She did not wish to do the former; but how could she submit to the latter? Just as, in her doubt and hesitation, she laid her hand upon the new garment, a thought struck her, and turning to the girl, she said—

'Tell Mrs. Armand that she can have the light cloak in welcome; but Charley is going out, and will wear the blue one.'

The girl departed, and Charley got an extra airing that day. Mrs. Armand was exceedingly indignant, and wondered if Mrs. Lovell supposed she was going to send her child out in that soiled and greasy thing?

Towards supper time, Mrs. Lovell's cook asked her if she wished coffee made.

'Oh, certainly,' was replied.

'Mrs. Armand has our coffee-pot.'

'I know. You must go in for it.'

The cook took off her apron, and ran into Mrs. Armand's for the coffee-pot. In a few moments she returned, and said—

'Mrs. Armand can't let you have it before to-morrow. Hers is not mended yet,—and Mr. Armand always drinks coffee for supper.'

'But go and tell her that I have company and cannot do without it,' replied Mrs. Lovell, a little impatiently.

The girl went back. When she returned, the coffee-pot was in her possession. As she set it down before Mrs. Lovell, she said—

'Mrs. Armand didn't seem to like it much.'

'Like what much?'

'Your sending again. She says her husband never drinks tea, and she don't know how she is going to make him coffee.'

'But that isn't my coffee-pot!'

'Yes ma'am.'

'Oh no. Never!' And Mrs. Lovell took up a dingy looking affair that her cook had brought in, and eyed it doubtingly. She remembered her Britannia coffee-pot as a beautiful piece of ware, without a scratch or bruise, and bright as silver. But this was as dull as pewter; a part of the bottom, an eighth of an inch wide and three inches long, had been melted off or ruined up; there were several large dents in it; the mouth of the spout had received a disfiguring bruise; and the little jet knob on the lid was entirely broken off.

No, no—this was not her coffee-pot. But cook insisted that it was, and soon proved her assertion.

This was too much for Mrs. Lovell, and the forbearance of that long suffering lady yielded under the too heavy pressure it was called to sustain.

'That my coffee-pot!' she exclaimed, with a most indignant emphasis, and lifting it from the table on which the cook had placed it, she set it down upon a tea-tray, which contained the other pieces belonging to her beautiful set of Britannia, the contrast was lamentable.

'There!' said she with a glowing cheek, and voice an octave higher than usual, 'Take this whole set in to Mrs. Armand, with my compliments, and say that I make her a present of it.'

The cook didn't need to be told her errand twice. Before Mrs. Lovell had time for reflection and repentance, she was beyond recall.

The dining-room and kitchen of Mrs. Armand's house were in the same story, and separated only by a door. It happened that Mr. Armand was at home when Mrs. Lovell's cook came in and presented the breakfast and tea set, with the compliments of her mistress.—The tone in which the message was given, as it reached his ears, satisfied him that something was wrong; and he was put beyond all doubt when he heard his wife say, with unusual excitement in her voice—

'Take them back! Take them back!'

But the girl retreated hastily, and left her in full possession of the tray and its contents.

'What's the matter?' inquired Mr. Armand, as his wife retreated into the dining room with flushed face and quivering lip. It was some moments before she could speak, and then she said something in a confused way about an insult. Not being able to understand what it all meant, Mr. Armand sought for information in the kitchen.

'Whose is this?' he said to Kitty, laying his hand upon the Britannia set.

'Mrs. Lovell's,' replied Litty.

'Why is it here?'

'Mrs Lovell sent it in as a present to Mrs. Armand.'

'Indeed!' Mr. Armand looked a little closer.

'Is this the coffee-pot we have been using a week?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Humph!' Light was breaking into his mind.

'Abusing I should have said,' he added.—'And because the coffee-pot has been ruined, and the set broken, Mrs. Lovell makes us a present of what remains?'

Kitty held down her head in silence.

After examining the coffee-pot, and contrasting it with other pieces of the set, Mr. Armand made an angry exclamation, and retired from the kitchen. He did not re-enter the dining-room where he had left his wife, but took his hat, and going out of the front door, shut it hard after him. In about half an hour he returned.

'Where have you been?' his wife ventured to ask as he entered the room where she was sitting in no very enviable mood.

'Trying to repair the wrong you have done.'

'How do you mean?' asked Mrs. Armand.

'I've bought a handsome set of Britannia ware for Mrs. Lovell,' replied the husband, and sent it to her with a note of apology, and a request from me, as a particular favor, never to lend you anything again, as you would be sure to injure it.'

'Mr. Armand!'

'It is true every word of it. I never was so mortified by anything in my life. I don't wonder that Mrs. Lovell sent you the beautiful set you had broken. The fact is, this borrowing system must come to an end. If you want anything, buy it; and if you are not able, do without it.'

Poor Mrs. Armand, whose feelings during the brief absence of her husband were by no means to be envied, now burst into tears and cried bitterly. Mr. Armand made no attempt to soothe the distress of his wife. He felt a little angry; and when one is angry there is not much room left in the mind for sympathy towards those who have excited the anger.

After supping, while Mrs. Armand sat sewing, her face under a cloud, and Mr. Armand was endeavoring to get over the unpleasant excitement he had experienced, by means of a book, some one rung the bell. In a little while Mr. Lovell was announced.

'More about the Coffee-pot,' replied Mr. Armand, as he laid aside his book.

Mrs. Armand made no answer, and her husband left the room where they were sitting, and entered the parlor. Mr. Lovell, who was standing in the floor, extended his hand, and said with a smile—

'I'm afraid my wife's hasty conduct—for which she is extremely sorry—has hurt her and offended you. And as these are matters which, if left to themselves, like hidden fire, increase to a flame, I thought it best to see you at once, and offer all necessary apologies on her behalf.'

'Not hurt in the least!' replied Mr. Armand good-humoredly. 'And as for apologies, Mrs. Lovell wants no better one than the wreck of her beautiful coffee-pot, which I have minutely examined. I am glad she sent it back, just as she did, and for two reasons—It gave me an opportunity to repair the wrong which had been done, and served as a lesson to my wife, such as she needed and will not soon forget. No, no, Mr. Lovell! don't let this make you feel the least unpleasant.'

'But my wife says she cannot think of keeping the beautiful tea and coffee set you sent her.'

'Tell her that she will have to keep them. They are hers in simple justice. If she sends them here, they will not be received. So she has no remedy. We want a set and will keep yours. If a disfigured coffee-pot has to be used let it be by those who are guilty of the abuse. And now, Mr. Lovell, tell your good lady from me, that if she leads my wife any thing more, I will not be responsible; as I have always disapproved the system, and now, more than ever, opposed to it.'

This last sentence was spoken playfully.—After half an hour's good-humored conversation, the gentlemen parted. It was some days before the ladies met, and then they were a little reserved towards each other.—This reserve never entirely wore off. But there was no more borrowing from Mrs. Lovell or any one else; for Mrs. Armand was entirely cured of her desire to make others keep the scriptural injunction, to which allusion was made in the commencement of our story.

RAILROAD TO SAN FRANCISCO.—A meeting has been held in the City of Boston, of those friendly to the construction of a Railroad from St. Louis to San Francisco. An address to the people of the United States was read and accepted, which suggested the following plan:

That a company composed of men in whose integrity and strength I repose confidence can be formed in the nation, be charred by Congress to construct a railroad from St Louis to San Francisco, with a capital of $100,000,000, and that the company (after having paid $2,000,000) shall invest the right to borrow U. S. 6 per cent stock to such an amount (not exceeding $66,000,000) as may be sufficient to finish the road and carry into full operation, with a double track.

That Congress give to this company a strip of public land 10 miles wide on the north side of the road, and the land for the bed of the road and for depots; and the right to take from the public land, wood, gravel, stone, iron, and other material necessary to construct the road.

A very modest proposition, indeed, on the part of these gentlemen of Boston! It is very possible Congress will hesitate a little before loaning ninety-eight millions of dollars to a company of gentlemen who have paid in but two millions. We are in favor of the road.—The country needs it. It is the great object of the age, and with or without the assistance of the government, it must be built. But if the United States are to furnish $8 100ths of the capital, they had better take the whole, and make it a government, and make it a government road—and then in a very short time it will be a free road. Perhaps after all, though, it is better to give these projectors ten miles in width on the north side of the road, than to give Mr. Whitney and his confederates thirty miles on each side of the road, which they demand as a prerequisite for the undertaking.—Mercantile Ledger.

Another Example.—The whigs are forced to admit that if General Taylor refuses to appoint anti-war men to office, he can appoint few whigs; and they say he would like to appoint some of those who fought in the recent war, but unfortunately the soldiers were nearly all Democrats.

Cotton Planter.—The Clinton Cotton Manufacturing Company of Woonsocket, R. I. are making large additions to their establishment. The Company, consisting of three capitalists, purchased the mills five years ago for $50,000. The last year they made a dividend of $10,000 each.—Philadelphia News-wrig.

And yet, notwithstanding the enormous profits which the cotton manufacturers are said to make, under the present tariff, they are constantly demanding more protection, and the whig newspapers are endeavoring to make the people believe the country will be ruined if it is not granted! We submit that the PEOPLE should be "protected" from the manufacturers.

Senator Benton on the Slavery Question.—Senator Benton has made a speech defining his position on the Slavery question. The first part only has been published.

Several columns are devoted to an exposition of Mr. Calhoun's inconsistencies, in the matter of slavery.

Mr. Benton is very explicit. He says it is absurd to deny to Congress the power to legislate as it pleases upon the subject. In Territories it has ever used the power, with the sanction of all the authorities. State and Federal, from the foundation of the Government to the present time. Congress alone, has the power to prohibit or admit Slavery. The power is not in the Territories, for their governments, and the officers depending therein, are the creatures of Congress. No citizen of any State can carry property derived from the law in that State one inch beyond the hour-lary line which creates the Slave property. For this reason Slaves cannot be removed to California or New Mexico. Slavery cannot be legally established in either Territory. The only effect of taking Slaves there would be, to make them free. The people of both Territories are unanimously opposed to it. The Missouri resolutions are copied from Calhoun's resolutions in the Senate, of 1847; and to undestand the design of them, you must be aware that they were aimed at the harmony and stability of the Union, and the members of the non-slaveholding States. As for himself, he says, privately, he would not follow in the lead of John C. Calhoun.

These are Mr. Benton's views, as disclosed in his speech.

There is mention made, of a dull clergyman who cornered a farmer whom he seldom saw at his ministrations, by asking him directly, after a little reproof for his sin of omission—'Shall we see you at church next Sabbath?' 'Ye-s-s,' he replied slowly, 'I'll go—or some hand! It was the same interesting clergyman who one hot, drowsy summer day, found, on concluding a long discourse, that half his congregation were rubbing their eyes and waking up, being startled by the sudden silence; when upon he quietly said: 'My friends, this sermon cost me, a great deal of labor, in fact, more than usual; you don't seem to have paid it quite as much attention as it deserved. I think I will go over it again!' And go it he did, from text to exhortation. He 'went over there didn't he?

CHICAGO, May 30.

Cure for the Cholera.—Our citizens are greatly delighted by the discovery of what is said to be a specific cure for the cholera, at once, simple, cheap, and effective, in the most advanced as well as in recent cases. Dr. Bird has the honor of the discovery. Drs. Herrick and Blakey, Professors of the Chicago Medical College, and four other of our first physicians, have said to be using it with perfect success. It is simply four parts sulphur and one charcoal in pills, one every two or three hours. As last it has been tested, astonishing results have been experienced, in the worst stages of cholera.

From the last report of the Board of Health we learn that on May 26 there were no cases on the 27, 3 cases, 28, none.

Gunpowder vs. Cholera.—When the cholera visited London in 1832 and '33, the city authorities had small quantities of gunpowder rolled tightly in strong paper and fired in the alleys and densely populated portions of the great metropolis. The concussion disturbed the air, and the odor from the powder replaced abominous effluvia and purified the atmosphere. It was used in theatres; churches and school rooms, and was found to be a powerful, disinfecting agent. The small quantity of a pound and a half to 24 hours in the buildings. It was used in the lazarettos of Trieste and Malta, and was tried in Paris in 1843, and in Montreal. In the latter city cannon were placed in the narrow streets and fired. Towns recently afflicted, the same remedy has been tried with success.

Cures for Cholera.—The papers contain numerous prescriptions for Cholera. They are all be good perhaps, and if the material is at hand for one, it may be for another—but the propriety of publishing them. The following is given from a Liverpool paper as successfully in India:

"Take three table spoons full of cognac, three table spoons full of the best French brandy, and forty drops of laudanum, mixed together, and let the patient drink it off. The body must then be rubbed over with hot and a hot flannel cloth. Should the cramps of the patient not improve within one hour, and the nails of the fingers begin to get blue, administer, one table spoonful of castor oil, of French brandy, and ten drops of laudanum. This generally throws the sufferer into a sound sleep, from which he will awaken perfectly well. This treatment has been found most effectual in India, where cholera first appeared, and thousands of persons were cured by this very simple remedy."

Extraordinary Eloquence in Maine.—Rev. Daniel L. Quimby, of Lisbon, who for the last fifteen years has been a circuit preacher of the Methodist persuasion, and who also up to the moment of his departure, had been in the above position, and had enjoyed the confidence and respect of a large circle of highly respectable friends and relatives, has eloped, for the year or two past. Quimby has been 'reared' at Lisbon, Me., his native town, where he owns a small property, and where his wife and children, (seven in number, still remain. Two weeks ago last Monday, he left his home to go to Redfield, Wayne, &c., to be absent the next Saturday. It seems he went to Wayne, the residence of Mrs. Lawrence, a paramour, who has left behind her three children, the youngest of whom is only a year and a half old. Not finding her in readiness, he remained in that vicinity through the week, and on the Sabbath enlightened the good people of that town with instructions upon the great truths of morality, virtue, and religion. On the following day he took Mrs. Lawrence to hang her to Lewistown, where she has relatives residing. He came there, tarried all night, and since that time they have not been seen nor heard of.—N. Y. Express.

The Last Californian.—On Monday last we saw a man wending his way to El Dorado in a covered Canadian French cart, drawn by a single pony. He had come all the way from Kingston, Canada. It is supposed that he will be lost Canadian going to California, where being has this pony and a half a family, are "reduced it up and went it alone."

O'Rielly's taking the rag off the bush.—We are gratified to learn from W. J. Delaney, Esq., the agent, having the matter in charge, that he has this afternoon commenced (Dec.) the Toledo and Wabash line, and is going to reach Logansport by the 4th of July. When this is completed there will be 91 miles of the Ohio, Indiana and Illinois Railroad line, which is to connect directly with Chicago. Cincinnati and Evansville, by the intermediate points. The move this year.—Toledo Commercial Republican.

☞ Three democrats have been turned out of the office of timber agents in Florida, and four whigs appointed in their stead. Does it not look as though those who have been in office made out of three by those who have not? Is it so much about government patronage? This is all for the sake of the "principle" not to reward partisans for active services in elections.—Ind. State Sentinel.

His stay here will be but short—perhaps only a week or two longer. His room is over B. Meson's store.

☞ The Times either cannot or will not give any reason why we should not claim the election of 14 democratic members of Congress out of 15 in Virginia, as a democratic triumph. The editor seems to have some vague and in- definite idea that all southern members of Con- gress are as a matter of course in favor of slavery, and will support Gen. Taylor in his efforts to sustain the "peculiar institution," and therefore we have no right to claim the e- lection of democrats as a democratic triumph. If this is not what he means will he please ex- plain himself?

We have seen a letter from an old citizen of Indiana in Oregon speaking strongly of the incompetency of Gen. Lane to acquit him- self creditably as Governor of the Territory. The General must be particularly careful to undertake none but easy duties. He must imitate the policy of the poor speller, who, in writing letters, took care to put nothing but easy words in them.—Louisville Journal.

We can scarcely believe that any old citi- zen of Indiana, at least any one acquainted with Gen. Lane, ever wrote such a letter to the Louisville Journal. Gen. Lane is well known to possess in an eminent degree that indomitable energy and decision of character, and that keen perception of right and wrong, so eminently necessary in a governor of a ter- ritory situated as Oregon is. The ridiculous charge of incompetency is put forth as an ex- cuse—a "cause"—for Gen. Taylor, who doubt- less intends to remove him as soon as he dare. It is inconceivably ludicrous to hear any one who professes to believe that Taylor is com- petent to discharge the duties of President of the United States, or to follow in the footsteps of the "earlier Presidents," contend that Lane is incompetent to acquit himself credita- bly as Governor of Oregon. Few except the incorrigible editor of the Louisville Journal would have the hardihood to make the asser- tion.

THE CHOLERA.—We find the following communication in regard to the cholera, and a simple and, as is believed, infallible remedy for it, in an exchange. We cannot of course vouch for the infallibility of the remedy, but the arguments adduced in its favor and the experiments tried certainly appear plausible, and as the remedy is simple and cannot do any harm, if it does no good, we think it at least worthy of trial. The remedy, it will be seen, is simply to make pills, composed of three parts of sulphur and one of charcoal : one to be taken every two hours.

The citizens of Chicago, at which place the disease was raging, were so elated at the success of the remedy and its apparent infal- libility, that they illuminated the city.

DEAR SIR:—In compliance with the wish s of my friend, Dr. J. H. Bird, I have made the following brief synopsis of a letter from him, sent to me for publication in the North Western Medical and Surgical Journal, which, together with the few additional remarks which I have made, you will please publish, in order that the members of the medical pro- fession, and the public generally, may have the benefits to be derived from what is suppo- sed to be a newly discovered remedy for the cholera.

The facts stated in the letter referred to a- bove are briefly as follows:

About six months since Dr. Bird and myself were led into a conversation on the effect of atmospheric influences in producing epidem ics, from reading an article from a German chemist in one of our periodicals, in which it was contended that influenza depended upon the presence of ozone, and that the severity and number of the attacks, as shown by chemi- cal analysis, was only in proportion to the a- mount of this substance in the atmosphere.— Taking this statement in connection with the fact that cholera is generally preceded by in- fluenzas, as shown by its history, we were led to the conclusion that both diseases might be dependant upon the same influence, modified in a degree according to the greater or less quantity of this deleterious agent present in the atmosphere at the time. The next step in the investigation was to determine what a- gent would counteract the influence, and de- stroy the deleterious properties of ozone.— The accurate chemical knowledge of Dr. Bird enabled him to suggest at once the well known- sul stance of sulpher, as possessing the prop erty of acting upon it in such a manner as to neutralize its influence.

In searching for facts to support this conclu- sion, it was found that cholera had never pre- vailed in the vicinity of sulphur springs, or in situations where this substance abounds;— hence the conclusion that sulphur might be, and probably was the antidote for cholera.

In one of our recent Medical Journals, an article appeared describing the manner of de- tecting ozone in the atmosphere, thus supply- ing the means of determining whether or not it was present at the very time the cholera was beginning to make its appearance among us.

Dr. Bird's experiments as well as those made subsequently by himself and by Drs. Bird, Blany, and myself from day to day, since that time, show that ozone is present in our at- mosphere, and that the amount is in propor- tion to the severity of the disease from time to time. About a week since Dr. Bird deter- mined to try the effects of sulphur on himself and others troubled, as nearly all have been, more or less of late, with unpleasant sensations, slight pains, &c., in all the digestive organs. The result was entirely satisfactory, so much so that Dr. Bird came immediately to my of- fice and requested me as a friend to test its ef- ficacy in my practice, but to say nothing to others in regard to the ingredients used until facts should justify its public announcement as a discovery. The beneficial effects resulting from its use in my practice was such as to convince me at once of its utility in the class of cases described above. During the last few days Drs. Bird, Blany and myself have continued to use this apparently simple reme- dy to the exclusion of nearly all others in all cases with cholera symptoms. The result has been wonderful. All the premonitory symptoms such as pain, a sense of fulness, un natural movements, slight diarrhœa, &c., have uniformly yielded at once to a single dose of three to four grains of sulphur.

In cases where either cramps, diarrhœa or vomiting have been present, and in fact where all these symptoms have existed in conjunc- tion, the use of sulphur, in the above named doses every three or four hours, has had the effect to ameliorate the patient's condition, at once, and when used in a few hours to dissi- pate entirely choleric symptoms.

Sulfur as its efficacy has been tested in the worst stages of collapse, most satisfactory re- sults have been obtained. In two or three ca- ses of the kind the effect of the remedy has been to bring back pulse to the wrist, restore warmth to the surface and stop the profuse diarrhœa and vomiting. In truth, the results obtained so far, have been such as to convince all of us, who administered it and witnessed its effects that if any remedy deserves the ap- pellation, this is the specific for cholera.

It having been determined to make this pub- lic statement, it is expected in return that no hasty conclusions will be made, either for or against what appears to be a proposition to accomplish much by very simple means.

Although the results, so far as obtained, in a short time, and by a few individuals, seem to justify our conclusions, it is hoped that phy- sicians will continue to depend on what they consider the most efficient practice, in bad ca- ses of cholera until they shall have tested the matter themselves and formed their own con- clusions; and also, that whatever may be the confidence of individuals in this or any other remedies, they will not depend upon their own judgment in any case, even of slight symp- toms, whenever it is possible to consult their physicians.

It is suggested by Dr. Bird that a combina- tion of powdered charcoal, one part to four of sulphur, has seemed to make the remedy more efficient.

FROM CALIFORNIA.—Emeralds and dia- monds are reported to have been found at the mines: one of the former was found as large as a hen's egg, and $170,000 was demanded for it. There are but fifty women at San Francisco—twenty of them are Americans.— The U. S. sloop-of-war Dale left on the 20th of March for the United States, with $200,- 000 in gold dust. Gen. Smith was at San Francisco with several officers. Three men have been executed at the mines for stealing a horse. Am ng the passengers is the Rev. Walter Colton. The U. S. transport ships Iowa, Rome, and Gen Taylor had arrived at Monterey with troops

Parrott, U. S. consul, left Mazatlan on the 10th of April, and arrived at New York yes- terday. He has $40,000 in gold dust and es- timates the amount of gold to be obtained yet at the placers the present year at $30,000,000 Three or four new quicksilver and two silver mines have been discovered. Platinum is known to exist in considerable quantities.— Diamonds of the size of hens' eggs have been found in Sacramento valley. A volunteer who had built a frame house offered to rent it to Gen. Smith for $18,000 and gave him five days to consider. The crews of Oregon and California steamers received $100, and cooks $150 per month.

Whig abuse of Free soilers.—The Decatur Clarion makes a very uncalled for attack up on John W. Wright, the free soil candidate for Lieutenant Governor. The object is too transparent to need answer or comment. The free soilers will doubtless appreciate the Clarion's reckless misstatements in their true light. The paper says;

"This John W. Wright above referred to, bears the character, among those who know him, and we can point to one who has known him long, of a graceless scamp. He is the man who a few years ago, while holding the responsible post of President Judge, attempt- ed to swindle the settlers on the Miami lands out of their pre-emptions, and came near los- ing his life for it."

It is well known by all who know anything about the affair alluded to, that Mr. John W. Wright was among the first to discover and most active in DEFEATING the attempted fraud. Austin W. Morris, chief manager of the Whig party in this State, played the part which the Clarion attempts to force upon Mr. Wright.—State Sentinel.

INDEPENDENCE IN HUNGARY.—It has been announced in the foreign intelligence already published, that the Hungarian Diet had de- posed the House of Hapsburg. On the 14th of April the National Representatives met to- gether in the great Protestant Church of De breczin. [The Magyars and a large portion of other Hungarians belong to the German Reformed and Lutheran Churches.) The public square was filled with an immense crowd of armed men. Kossuth, to whom was entrusted the reading of the decree of deposi- tion, appeared before the Assembly, and read the following propositions for the sanction of its members:

In the name of the Hungarian nation:

1. The independence of Hungary and Tran sylvania, which is legally united to her, as well as their annexed dependencies, is pro- claimed. Hungary is declared a free and in- dependent European State. The integrity of her territory is inviolable.

2. The House of Hapsburg-Lorraine having, with its own hands, violated the pragma- tic sanction by its treason and felony by the war it has kindled against the Hungarian na- tion, by its attempts at dismembering the Hun garian territory in endeavoring to separate Transylvania and Croatia from Hungary, by its assaults upon the free and independent ex- istence of the Hungarian Empire, has perju- red itself, and is deposed from the throne of Austria.

3. The deposition and banishment of the House of Hapsburg is proclaimed in the name of the Hungarian nation.

4. In asserting her natural and indictable rights, and entering into the family of the Eu- ropean States, as a free and independent na- tion, Hungary declares she will preserve peace and friendship, so long as her rights are not invaded, with all other nations, and princi- pally with those who formerly were under the same sovereign as herself, as well as the neigh- boring empires of the Turkey and Italian States, and that she desires to contract with them alliances based on a community of inter- ests.

5. The form of government will be estab- lished by the National Assembly. But until the fundamental principles of the constitution shall have been determined, the country, in all its extent, will be governed by a President and Ministry, on his responsibility and that of the Ministers named by him.

The reading of this decree was received with unbounded enthusiasm, and it was im- mediately voted by the Assembly without a dissenting voice. On the motion of one of the members of the Diet, Kossuth was unanimous- ly named President of the Government, and the members passed a vote expressing the con- fidence of the country in his integrity, and thanking him in its behalf. On the same day, the Chamber of Magnates, under the Presi- dency of Sigismond Ormyai, adopted the de- cree of the Diet with equal unanimity and en- thusiasm.

The Cup of Tantalus.

The editor of the New York Mirror, who was a candidate for the office of Marshal of New York, tells the "whole story" of his as- pirations and disappointment "in as few words as possible." He was an original supporter of General Taylor. On the day after the presi- dential election, a distinguished whig of the city accosted him with these words: "Fuller, you must be marshal. It is the best office in the city; everybody says you are entitled to it, and the whigs will all go in for you. Gen- eral Taylor knows what you have done for him, and of course you will only have to say that you will accept it." Mr. Fuller consen- ted to be considered as a candidate. His suc- cess was considered so certain, that "one man went so far as to guaranty our appointment, provided we would consent to divide the salary with him! Another, who wanted the office for a personal friend, agreed to enter into bonds to pay us four thousand dollars a year for the next four years on the condition that we would withdraw in his favor to insure his success!"— The most friendly credentials were offered him; but they were respectfully declined;— as, says he, "we did not deem it necessary to offer 'certificates of character,' after the grateful letters and messages we had been honored with from General Taylor." The next scene of the drama was his visit to Washington, to witness the inaugural and con- gratulate the old Hero; but here an unwel- come spectacle presented itself, though any man tolerably well acquainted with the springs of whig politics might have foreseen it would have come to pass:

"Before the President had taken the oath of office, it became apparent that a regular scramble for the "loaves and fishes' was a- bout to take place, and that the mania for of- fice was spreading like a contagion through the whole infected District of Columbia. To our great surprise we encountered on the ground some five or six competitors for the marshalship of the southern district, all of whom were strongly fortified and backed up with certificates from their last employers.' These half dozen, like Falstaff's men in buck- ram, soon quadrupled in number; and each, in the hope of insuring his own success, con- centered his opposition upon the most promi- nent of his rivals. We have reason to believe, that during the last three months, about the purlieus of the departments, we have been the best abused man in the nation. But let that pass for the present."

The scene began to deepen in interest. Af- ter two or three very pleasant interviews, and a brief note addressed to the President, "of- fering myself to his consideration as a candi- date for the office of marshal, we were advi- sed in reply, through a gentleman belonging to General Taylor's southern suite, to make a formal application to the proper depart- ment, accompanied by a few letters that might be filed in justification of the appointment." We presume this reply came from the Presi- dent himself, though his confidential agent.— Upon this hint, like Othello, Mr. Fuller spoke. He obtained several letters from gentlemen of the highest character and longest purses, as well as testimonials from many of the "most eminent politicians in the Empire State and city," as well as a petition from seventy-two of the leading members of the bar, among whom were Messrs. Maxwell and Hall.— Several members of Congress, too, joined in the most earnest recommendations. A strong letter in his behalf was addressed to Mr. Ew- ing, by "a gentleman who had been offered a place in the cabinet;" (Mr. Truman Smith, we presume.)

The Vice President of the United States gave us the "comfortable assurance of hope," in the following words: "When your case comes up, Mr. Fuller, I shall do my part for you." But we will dwell no longer upon the "documentary strength" which proved to be "perfect weakness" in the decisive hour.

It is our private opinion that not a single member of the cabinet troubled himself to read any portion of the papers we have above alluded to, with the except on of the Presi- dent himself, who "read them all attentively." [Fifty-one letters, signed by one hundred and fifty-seven names.]

But it would not all do. Taurulus had the cup to his lip, but the waters, after they rose, receded from his taste. "How (says Mr. Fuller,) the appointment of Mr. Tallmadge was effected, it is no! our purpose to inquire.— We left our application in General Taylor's hands, with the special request that he should withdraw the papers in case he could not make the appointment. He did so; and consequent- ly, at the time the appointment was made we were not a candidate for the office."

He accompanies this expose with various testimonies from the newspapers, and finally bags of his friends no longer to stop [him] in the streets to condole with us on our mis- appointment, or to rail against the powers that be."

We shrewdly suspect that Mr. Fuller, a- mid his other "consolations to the afflicted," has companions enough to sympathize in his disappointment. The fact is, the President has held out hopes to several of his friends that he could not carry out. The old saying is, that "where there is a will, there is a way." But the doubt is whether the President has confidence enough in his own qualifications to form a will; or if he had, whether the rules of the cabinet proceeding would leave him a way to carry out his own wishes. His cab- inet frequently overrule him; and the rumor is, outvote him. It is said that Mr. Van Ren- selaer was promised the post office of Albany, but he failed. General S. S. Smith, of Phil- adelphia, also underwent the fate of Panta- lus; and there is little doubt that Mr. Collins Lee had an assurance in black and white of the President's wishes in his behalf, and yet he was cut out of the post office of Baltimore. This is, indeed, an extraordinary spectacle;— but it is true as it is strange. Curious enough that the President of the United States should reduce himself to the embarrassing necessity of sacrificing his own wishes to those of his cabinet!

Such is the state to which the impatient and politic whigs have reduced the President of their choice, and the dignity of the execu- tive. The secret consists in the selection of a military man who is an available candidate, but entirely disqualified and unduly unavaila- ble as the first magistrate of a great republic. The Athens (Ga.) Banner remarks with great force, yet without being aware of the length to which things are proceeding in the capital:

In a republic, the chief executive magistrate should be a man of sufficient capacity to rely upon himself. He should be above the in- trigues and corruptions of cabinets, and be a- ble to impress his own views upon the admin- istration of the government, as far as the forms of the constitution will permit him. We want no "mediocrity" of abilities, no "docility" in being led by cabinets. That is not the feast to which we invite our Presidents. We want a bold and energetic Executive—one who un- derstands the constitution and the practical details of government—one who will take his stand upon the constitution, and preserve its balances in defiance of cabinet influences; such a man as was General Jackson—one who will "take the responsibility,"—one who con siders himself as the representative of the peo- ple, and will carry out their views in despite of the suggestions of men, who are being e- lected by the people, can claim no participa- tion in the government except that of mere counsel. In a monarchy it is often fortunate that the cabinet is the king—in a republic the President should always be the President.

General Taylor too large for the Breeches of the "earlier Presidents."—The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger, gives an account of the visit of the latest Presi- dent to the Patent Office, to see the breeches of the Father of his country. What the "sec- ond Washington" there saw and what he said, is thus mentioned:

"Gen. Taylor is said to have lately visited the Patent Office, to take a particular view as well as the precise dimensions of Wash- ington's celebrated inexpressibles, very prop- erly preserved in that high place, by a nation's gratitude. Gen. Taylor examined them very closely, but after a pause, observed to one of the by-standers, that he should be afraid to put them on, without lengthening them in the legs a thing the more surprising, as Washington was a great man with long legs, while his own, (Gen. Taylor's legs,) were rather below the common size. The enigma was, of course, explained by the stating that "in the days of Washington, the President of the United States had neither enemies nor pantaloons, and was therefore ready to show both his hands and his legs."

The old General took the tight-kneed pair of inexpressibles of Gen. Washington for a pair of pants, and we suppose, chuckled amaz- ingly over the evidence thus presented that the last of the "early Presidents' was bigger than the first. Where was Col. Bliss?—U. S. Statesman.

From the Louisville Democrat

I have no Friends to Reward—No Enemies to Punish."—Z. Taylor, 1848.

SCENE IN THE PRIVATE CHAMBER OF GEN. TAYLOR, AFTER AN EXCITING INTERVIEW WITH THE CABINET.

General Taylor, solus, [Soliloquising.]—For what purpose was I called from the tent ad field and plumed troop—aye, from the "pomp, pride and circumstance of glorious war," to preside in so exalted a civil station? Am I fitted by nature—surely not by educa- tion—to perform the duties of so important an office? I remember well; "tell it not in Gath." It was once said by the whigs, (by- the-bye, when I speak of whiggery, now-a- days, I perceive a strong smell of buttermilk) that when Old Hickory was first nominated for the Presidency, he exclaimed "Is it possible?" If astonishment was great in his case, what in mine! Little did I think, when the cry of the blood-hounds, in the everglades of Florida, was heard by me, that ever Des- tiny, though as capricious as the field-kissing breezes of Heaven, could have wrought so unlikely an event as my elevation—that over the magic of war, and the blaze of war's artillery, could have exorcised me from the depths of obscurity.

But what brings the blush mantling to my cheek—a cheek hitherto tinged with nought of shame—is, that I should have been made the willing instrument of those stercotyped political harpies, who have so often assembled around each victim, and set their saw-like teeth in the vitals of his fame; and that I, treading in the footsteps of old Harrison, should have been dictated to, and made to write to my silly letters to beguile the democracy and cheat them of their votes—the people— who, after all, in peace and in war, are the bone and sinew of the land.

Before I become the political prisoner I am, how towering was my character as a warrior —how the pulse of the American people throbbed when the echo of my victories rever- berated from Fort Isabel to the blood-stained field of Buena Vista: aye, then ambition touched my soul, and eagle-like, it rose upon pinions of imaginary glory to the skies.

[ENTER A SERVANT.]

Servant.—General Taylor, a petition from C. D. He says he voted for you.

[ENTER ANOTHER SERVANT.]

General Taylor—(Aside.)—A plague upon these hungry miscreants! Is it for this I was preferred to this office—that I should wither the laurels I have won at the cannon's mouth to gratify these blunderers? Conservative are they! If Mr. Clay's views were correct and conservative, why did they not stick to him, and rather fail in a good cause, and on the side of patriotism, than compromise with availabil- ity at this expense? They could not elect Mr. Clay, therefore they will take a popular man, a military chieftain. Spoils! it is. Aye, there the old serpent of whiggery shakes his rattle in the garden of our country.

What must the country and after ages think of me, who confessedly, can only offer honesty? —"Old Zack" honest? That I should play the Brutus of old, and heard these Vandals in their onslaught upon the government! I, who could not be silenced by the legions of war on Mexico's plains, to be dictated to by these Jacks of the Cabinet! [Aloud.] Tell them—please go to the Cabinet. [Aside.] I have often ridden the skin off Old Whitey's back, but this Cabinet makes my skin fly faster than ice.—Well may I say aloud myself and "Whitey," in the language of Mezeppa, that this Cabinet

"Scarce can wait till one or both should die,
Ere their rejoice begun."

[ENTER A WHIG FRIEND.]

Friend.—Aye, General Taylor, how do you do? I hope General Taylor, that in you we see a second Washington; an administration resembling that of the earlier Presidents; a bowing to the will of Congress by the Presi- dent; no veto, except in cases clearly constitu- tional; no proscription for opinion's sake; no friends to reward—nor enemies to punish; in other words, how refreshing it will be to see the old ship of the Union moored in so safe a harbor.

General Taylor, [coughing and greatly troubled with sneezing.]—I hope so. [Aside.] How farsical!—I lie, you lie, he lies—we lie, they lie; how they go it—all lie. Methinks I dream—Am I Zachary Taylor? Perhaps I mistake. And these office-seekers are my blood-hounds, and I the poor hunted Indian of Florida, amidst fatigue and heat, struggling for life. Shades of the immortal Washing- ton! Ha second Washington! O. daddy, what can I boast of? Let me see:

1st. Am I an orator? The scene at the Louisville dinner, got up by forced loans from my friends, the people, by the Council, will show. Was not that rich? My good friends would make me speak there, and O what burst of eloquence flooded the banquet—insomuch that one of my raw admirers said, "General, don't read any speech—you can't come it: give us Old Whitey."

2d. I don't swear, Washington-like, except when I am excited, and then I go it with the blasts of Æolus.

3d. No friends to reward—no enemies to pun- ish, except that Washington-like, I have turn- ed out more men from office than half a dozen early Presidents.

And now I am reminded of that great ora- tor and statesman, Henry Clay—"Harry of the West." I am constrained to say that that great man would have adorned the Presiden- cy. Much better would it have been for me to have hearkened to the monitions of pru- dence and good sense, and have reposed upon the conquests so valiantly won upon the plains of Mexico. How often has it been that the noble Clay, with giant power, rising up in the halls of Congress, with the power of a moral Behemoth, in the plenitude of his intellectua power, with form dilated and glowing eye, like the eagle of the Alps, stricken and borne his foe to his eyrie. Then his fame, like the red- mouthed artillery of war, resounded from shore to shore.

Well, I have this consolation—the canvass has cost me no money. I can count 250 negroes, and some quarter of a million of "yellow boys."

"Thus, O Fortune, thou hast saved thy friend,
And to thee my supple knee I bend."

Exit.

Seat of Government in Canada.—Montreal is to continue to be the Capital of the Canadas. Lord Elgin's reply to the address for its re- moval is as follows:

GENTLEMEN: The subject of your address invoking the exercise of the Royal prerogа- tive, in a matter involving very serious con- siderations of public policy, should receive my best attention. I must not conceal from you, however, that, in my opinion, so serious a change in that policy ought not to be lightly adventured upon: and that, above all, the pressure of an apparent temporary necessity for that change, must not be allowed to exer- cise an undue influence upon the adoption of it.

It is a part of the Royal prerogative to de- cide on the most appropriate place for the seat of Government.

The Bank of Massilon.—The brokers in the employ of the State Banks are paying their respects to the Massilon Bank at the rate of from five to ten thousand dollars daily. Its charter expires in about a year. We have no doubt that it will break before many months. The State Banks are pursuing all the old banks with venom and bitterness, determined to break them if possible.—Seneca Advertiser.

Is that one of the "chartered privileges" of the State Banks? Or is it the legitimate busi- ness of the concern?—Dayton Empire.

Both! The Banks claim a "charter large as any wind to" burst up whom they please, and then,——burst up themselves! The "le- gitimate business of the concern" is to remove all rivals, get all it can, and keep all it gets.— Ohio Statesman.

The Tariff and the People.—Let any man look at the course of things under the opera- tion of the Tariff of 1842, or during the exis- tence of the Bank of the United States, says the Pennsylvanian, and he will convince him- self with little trouble, of this great and im- portant truth—that a dollar will purchase near- ly twice as many of the necessaries of life now, as the same amount of money would command during either of the above periods. The low prices of sugar, coffee, tea, and muslins, and other necessaries, are in effect substantial ad- ditions to the daily wages of the laboring man. —Toledo Republican.

A nice young man by the name of Eagle- man, who was a "dashing beau" some two years since at Fort Wayne, and who at the same time took captive many a fair lady's heart, and appropriated to his own use money that belonged to his employers, was recently appointed to do the State some service, in one of her public institutions at Jeffersonville. Madison Courier.

General William J. Worth.

The death of this gallant officer, who died at San Antonio de Bexar on the 7th instant, has been fully confirmed. In noticing the death of General Worth, the New Orleans Picayune says that "he had been taken sor- rously sick, as we learn, only the day previous, though he had been quite unwell with a diar- rhœa from the time he left New Orleans, and continued so until he arrived at San Antonio, which was but a few days before his death.— He was far from being well when he passed through the city, and was so much indisposed at Indianola that the boat was detained there on his account, before proceeding to Port La- vaca. It is presumed, though not certainly known, that the disease of which General Worth, died was the cholera."

In the death of Gen. Worth, the military service has lost one of its ablest Generals—the country one of its most devoted patriots.

When the war of 1812 broke out, young Worth entered the army as a private. A me- morial written by him to save from punish- ment a young friend who had enlisted at the same time, first brought him to the notice of General, then Colonel Scott, who gave him the appointment of private secretary, and af- terwards procured for him a commission of a Lieutenant. In consequence of his bravery at the battle of Chippewa, young Worth was brevetted to a Captainey, and at Lundy's Lane won his commision as a Major. In the Flori- da war, for his gallantry, he was brevetted a Brigadier General. For his daring courage and military sagacity at Monterey, where he was assigned the task of taking the heights on the Saltillo road—storming the Bishop's palace and then sweeping into town to the as- sistance of General Taylor, he was brevetted a Major General.

At the battle of Molino del Rey, where, at the head of his command, Gen. Worth carried the supposed impregnable works of the enemy, though with a vast loss. At Cerro Gordo, Chapultepec, Cherubusco and at the storming of the gates of Mexico, Worth participated, and won increased honors.

His daring bravery made him the idol of the men, and he was named by some the "Mu- rat of the army," in whose reckless daring he was the counterpart, but was more generally known by the name of the "Knight of the Waving Plume." At the storming of the Bishop's Palace at Monterey, in the midst of the carnage, when the soldiers were struck down by the incessant iron hail of the Mexi- can batteries, Worth seeing a momentary hes- itation among the troops that never before re- coiled from danger, dismounted his charger, and placing his cap with its tall plume on his sword, and raising it high in air, thus led them to the assault and capture of the fortress—his plume answering the purpose of that of Hen- ry of Navarre, at the battle of Ivry, when he told his soldiers if they lost their standard to rally round his white plume.

Gen. Worth, by the order heads of the ar- my, was said to be brave even unto rashness. He however was apparently rash when rash- ness was called for, as was the case at Monte- rey and Molino del Rey.

Brave as he was, and exposed as his life had been during the various battles in which he has participated, Gen. Worth escaped all to die in his bed—to be struck down almost at a moments warning by disease, and far from his family, to breath his last. He was no common man, and had elements of greatness in him which would have placed him among the first in any situation in life. But disease has done that which the enemies of his coun- try failed to do; and the brave and the chiv- alrous Worth is gone to the bourne from whence no traveller returns, and the nation mourns his loss. Ohio Statesman.

THE IMMENSE

Mineral Wealth of California

HAS induced thousands to abandon the comforts of home and brave the hardships and fatigues of a trip across the Rocky Mountains, or the perils of a passage round Capehorn, all of which may now be avoided, and on fair a chance found of making money at home. It is an old adage that a penny saved is two-pence earned; there is no trouble in making money here, the only thing is, to keep it after it is made. This only in a great measure to be accomplished by buying at where goods can be had as cheap (but none who make all their purchases there can fail to earn enough to make themselves rich) as at any other establishment, thus running the risks necessary to pay on gold on the Sacramento.

B. MASON'S
Celebrated Cheap Store,

A large stock of SPRING & SUMMER GOODS has just been received, including a beautiful assortment of

Fancy Dress Goods.

Silks, Barages, Linen Lawns Linen Poplins, Lawns, Ginghams, White Lawns, Swiss Muslin, Pearl Mulls and Jaconets, Cotton Lawns, Nankeens, Calicoes, &c. White and Red Crape, Embroidered Crapes, Berage, and Silk STRIPED Flannels—a splendid assortment. Extra flannels, very La-dies' and Gents' Cloths, Cassimeres, Satinets, Linsey, Sheetings, Checks, Drillings, and all sorts of Summer Wear.

It is needless to say more than that the stock now on hand at the establishment fully equals all former ones, and is offered at even less than Boston's unrivalled low prices. Call and satisfy yourselves.

The stock of GROCERIES is large, and all of the choicest quality—nothing else is ever kept, and will be retailed as Cheap as CHEAPER than the inferior articles offered in some of the flaming puffing stores in this city. DYE STUFFS—Logwood, Fustic, &c.

QUEENSWARE.—A large and most beautiful assortment of the latest styles.

HARDWARE.—A full stock, which is offered very low. Every thing in the shape of BOOTS & SHOES, from a Steppe Brother to Baby's shoe—including Misses' Gaiters, Slippers, Walking Shoes, &c., and Gents' Calf Boots, Water Proof Boots, Shoes, Brogans, &c., &c., all warranted of the latest fashions.

HATS AND CAPS in great variety, from a Beaver Hat Tax to a thrifling cap.

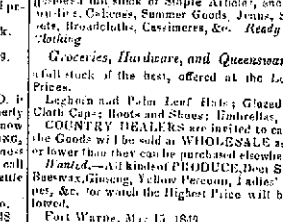
STATIONERY.—There is also a large stock of Stationery—including School Books, Cap and Letter Paper, Envelopes, &c. &c.

Also an endless variety of NOTIONS—such as Steel Beads, Combs, Glass, and Tortoise Shell, in great variety; Travelling Bags; Pen and Pocket Knives, and every thing else that is neat, tasty, fashionable or desirable.

SALT & WHITE FISH by the BBL. NAILS & GLASS.

In short, buyers will find any thing and every thing they can think for, and for CASH can buy for less than they have ever demanded. All kinds of PRODUCE, Deer Skins &c. taken in exchange for Goods.

NEW ARRIVAL



At the Ohio Cash Store.

AYLSWORTH & BORDEN are now receiving their SPRING & SUMMER GOODS suitable for the market, which have been selected with a view to durability and fast colors. Having purchased their goods since the late thereby saving one profit, they will be sold at a small advance, and even cheaper than others are selling inferior goods. We are desirous that all persons should call and see the entire assortment, as it regards durability and prices. The goods have been purchased in New York, and not in Cincinnati where the rascal of our merchants have made their purchases, and we are confident that we can sell cheaper to the citizens of Fort Wayne as they do in Cincinnati. This is an important fact to be remembered by those who purchase goods in this city. Our stock is new and fresh, we have a great variety of

of the latest styles, consisting in part of silk and linen barages, brocade linen lustres, linen, English, Scotch, French, and low cloth ginghams, bolzarines, lawns, figured and plain jaconets, every variety of prints. Beautiful plain and embroidered Swiss muslins, bareges, Swiss and linen de laines, common crape veils. Also a large stock of French and English collars, cassimeres, cashmeres, cotton cloths, plain and figured satin ribbons, figured and plain crape de rhone vestings, fancy do; plain heathen vestings, Brussels and worsted laces, hosiery cloths, cottonades, satinets, &c. A large stock of hosiery and knitery of every description.

BONNETS.—Beautiful French bonnets, French lace, receiving by Knoch and Reade, China, reed, leghorn, and English straw cut. Sprats, Jenny Lind do, open braid and Rutland flats. ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS of every variety, ornaming ribbons; also a splendid stock of

HATS.—Fashionable cloth hats, English, Dunstable, and Rutland do Pedal, and plain and colored leghorn; also a magnificent stock of BOOTS AND SHOES.—Ladies' black and colored walking and dress gaiters, Congress half gaiters, Brodkey, slippers and walking shoes, Misses' gaiters, slippers and morocco boots, children's shoes of every description and size.

Carpets and Rugs.

We have in store the ingrain and Venetian carpets, Wilton and tufted rugs, Scotch and Kidderminster carpets, which we would here say to the public that we have made extensive arrangements with a house in New York, to enable us to open a carpet room, where we will during the course of the summer receive a large and splendid stock, and will be happy to show every variety of carpeting used in the West, together with all floor cloths, matting, druggets, rugs, &c., and will sell them at as cheap a rate as any carpet store purchased in Cincinnati, or a small advance over New York costs.

We are daily expecting a large stock of shortings and domestic goods, Hardware, Queensware, Groceries, &c., shipped by the Erie Canal.

WANTED—All kinds of Produce the Farmer has to dispose of in exchange for goods, at the lowest cash prices. We will take all the butter offered at the highest market price.

Don't forget the place, in Hamilton's block. Store formerly occupied by Thomas Hamilton, second store from the corner.

Thankful for the liberal patronage heretofore received, we are determined to sell our goods very cheap, that we may continue in the continuation of the same.

More New Goods.

S. & W. S. EBSALL have received their spring stock, making their assortment complete, and at least equal to any to be found in the place.—The new arrivals comprise all the new styles of

Fancy Dress Goods,

Calicoes, Ginghams, Lawns, Trimmings, &c. &c. Drillings and Summer Goods of every description.

Groceries, Hardware, Queensware,

&c., &c., &c.

We are not disposed to puff ourselves into notoriety, like some of our neighbors, as we believe actions speak louder than words; but intend that all who give us a call shall be satisfied that better bargains can be had at this establishment than at any gas house in the city. Those who want genuine good articles at fair prices will find this the place to purchase. Persons living in the country, even if they do not want to trade over $5, will save money, by having us up for the reason, coming here and getting articles they will have some satisfaction in wearing, instead of trading with those itinerant Israelites who are now flooding the country with their trash.

A SAVING OF AT LEAST FIFTY PER CENT will be the natural consequence of taking the advice. Call and try.

THE POPULAR CYCLOPEDIA

OF MODERN DOMESTIC MEDICINE,

By KEITH IMRAY, M. D., Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians and Licentiate of the Royal College of Surgeons, Edinburgh.

This work gives a clear and concise idea of the nature of the distinctive symptoms, of the premonitory signs of diseases, of their predisposing causes, and of the methods of their treatment recommended by the most distinguished physicians.

The modes of employing the medicines in general use are faithfully described; as are also the diet and regimen necessary under various diseases, and during convalescence.

Diet, Atmosphere, Temperature, Bathing, Clothing and Exercise are also speedily treated upon.

The peculiarities of the American Edition prefix to Dr. Imray's work, short illustrated, and very valuable Treatises upon Anatomy, Physiology and Surgery; also Directions for the Treatment of the Sick, Management of the Sick Room, Preparation of Food for the Sick, &c. &c.

Many valuable articles have been introduced in the courtesy of medical gent emen of the United States.

The entire volume, with its full Index, Tables of Doses, &c., will prepare it to candidly believed, a most valuable book for Family use.

The work will be completed in twelve weekly numbers, 25 cents each, forming one large 8vo. volume of about 1008 pages.

In Advance of the Telegraph!

SMITH & Co. No. 1 Jones' Block, respectfully inform the Ladies that they have just received their

SPRING STOCK

Of New and Fashionable GOODS,

embracing every thing really desirable in the Eastern markets, and which will be sold at prices to Beat the Jews!

The Ladies are invited to call and examine this splendid stock, for exceeding any thing ever brought to the place. Their are peculiarly rich and becoming; their stock of Bonnet Ribbons, is beyond comparison the best ever seen in the west; and as for Lawns, Ginghams, DeLaines, Calicoes, &c., &c., the half of what might truly be said about them would not be believed. Therefore a general invitation is extended to all to call and judge for themselves.

New Styles of Dress Goods

SEEING IS BELIEVING.

P. S. Beware of WANDERING JEWS, unless you wish to be shaven; you can buy a good genuine article at No. 3 for considerably less than the small pox peddlers charge for their damaged, imperfect, spurious, flimsy articles, which are made to sell and not to wear.

Stoves. Stoves. Stoves!

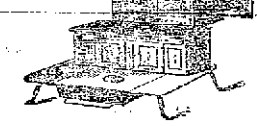
A FEW of the latest styles and most improved patterns in the way of HOT AIR COOKING STOVES, are now arriving at the Old Stand.

SIGN OF THE PAD LOCK.

From the following description it will be seen that ever one the proprietor of this establishment is constantly making to supply the public with the latest improvements in the line of his business.

The now offers for sale the splendid Boiler

Niagara Hot Air Cooking STOVE.



Warranted to economise fifty per cent in the amount of fuel it uses, and the time it takes to boil or bake, over any other stove in use for or any other country.

The next is the same man's patent of 3 Boiler

Niagara Hot Air Cooking Stove,

which takes in nearly three feet wood, with all the advantages of the other. (See plate above.

These Stoves took the first premium at a recent fair of the Erie County agricultural society New York.

Next comes the good old EMPIRE HOT AIR COOKING STOVE, which is so well known in this country, with two ovens, one being portable. Also, the

Hathaway Hot Air Cooking Stove,

the excellent qualities of which will be readily testified to, by a number of families in Fort Wayne, who have them in use,—the proprietor's own family being one of that number. The next is another new stove called the

which is now having a great run in the East, and no doubt will run quite as fast on West, as soon as it is known and its qualities understood.

Then comes the Premium Cooking Stoves also, viz:

The Surrendering Hot Air Parlor Stoves;
The Ten and Seven Plate Stoves;

All of them are made of the best and clearest Castings, and are

Warranted to stand fire.

without breaking.

After these comes the Russia Sheet Iron Parlor Office Stoves, made to order, any size that may be wanted.

TIN WARE manufactured and sold wholesale at Eastern prices. Country merchants will find it to their advantage to call here for their supplies of this article.

Tin Plate, Sheet Copper Sheet Iron and Block Tin are constantly on hand and for sale to the trade at the New York Hardware Store, sign of the Pad Lock.

PURE LIQUORS.

A Fresh supply of Pure Liquors for Medical use, consisting of Brandy, Gin, Port, Madeira, and Tennessee WINES, for sale at WALKER'S Drug Store.

No Cure No Pay.

I would inform the world that I have a Remedy for curing or healing Ruptures, without any pain in the operation, and without even seeing the place that ruptured. Some of the wise and learned may laugh and scorn at the proposition, but don't be too fast, this is no new fiction, my father has practiced the Remedy over forty years in the East, and I have cured three persons myself. I give this to the public, because I believe it to be my duty to do all the good I can to my fellows.

WM. IBA.

And I would also request editors of papers in the Country to make a short paragraph of the above in their sheets, and by so doing they will confer a blessing on some of their patrons.

Fire & Marine Insurance Company

THE subscriber has been appointed an Agent of the Protection Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., at Fort Wayne, Indiana, and is authorized to

Insure Dwelling Houses, Stores, Warehouses, Mills, Manufactories, Barns, Stables, and the contents of each, together with every other similar species of property Against loss or damage by Fire.

The subscriber is also authorized to issue Policies on the most favorable terms

Against loss or damage on the cargoes of Steam, Keel, Canal, and Flat Boats, while navigating the Western Rivers, Lakes, and Canals.

On account of the liberal patronage heretofore extended to said Company, they have been enabled greatly to reduce their rates of insurance, so that now every man has an opportunity, for a trifling sum, to protect himself against the ravages of these destructive elements.

For terms of Insurance, apply to the subscriber, at the office, of John Hough, Jun., corner of Calhoun & Columbia Streets, Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company,

THE UNDERSIGNED HAVING BEEN appointed an agent for said company, is authorized to make every kind and nature of insurance appertaining to Life Risks, for certain number of years or for life, grant annuities, and other conveyances.

The provisions of the charter of said company are peculiarly favorable to the assured—containing many important privileges, which experience has proved may be safely granted, and which are deemed superior to any heretofore offered in this country.

Married women may insure the lives of their husbands, secure from the demands of creditors.

Creditors may insure their debtors, or debtors their selves, for the benefit of creditors.

The assured after a term of years, may at any time surrender the policy and receive its equitable value in cash.

The subject of Life Insurance is attracting much attention in the Eastern States, and needs only to be fairly presented to the public, as by this means a comfortable sum may be left to the wife and children who, misfortune comes upon them, and the husband and father is taken from their embrace by the cold hand of death.

Pamphlets explanatory of the uses and benefits arising from Life Insurances, will be furnished those wishing to be insured.

There is no real occasion for sickness!

Dr. Ralph's Pills,

COUNDED on the only principle on which a UNIVERSAL MEDICINE can safely and conscientiously be recommended to the world! They are fast superceding every other remedy for Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Acidity, Headache, Costiveness, all impurities of the blood, Biliousness, Liver Diseases, Fevers & Ague, the remedy for Summer Complaints, &c. The reason why they cure is,

THEY ACT IN PERFECT ACCORDANCE WITH NATURE.

Their operation is exceedingly mild and quiet, and if taken in accordance with the directions, which are remarkably plain and clear.

THEY CANNOT FAIL TO CURE

and to perfectly prevent disease as every living person's explanation of the new theory to the Rabbinic no unreliable paper which may be had gratis of the agents. Their unexampled success in all the complaints of FEMALES, and their also attending pregnancy, is acknowledged by thousands.

NO FEMALE SHOULD BE WITHOUT THEM.

Testimonials of cures of every disease the human system is liable to, often after all other means had failed, are consequently being received at the Central Office, N. Y. City.

Price 25 cents a box, full directions, and Family packages at $1, (in which is much saving.)

J. B. Hanna, Fort Wayne, having been appointed general agent, will supply this with best ted medicine, wholesale and retail, on the same terms as at the Central Office.

June 13, 1848. y9

Read the following testimony from W. W. Stevens, principal of the Classical & Commercial Academy, Fort Wayne, Ind.:

"Having had repeated opportunities for the last fourteen years of witnessing the great benefits various persons have derived from the use of Dr. Ralph's Pills, and knowing Doctor Ralph to be a graduate of the University of Edinburg, a member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, and of the Medical College of the State of New York; also a Physician of Long, Extensive and successful Practice. I cordially recommend said Pills to all who may be afflicted with diseases for which the Pills are recommended, believing they will perform all that is promised for them if the directions or using them be strictly followed.

W. W. STEVENS.

Fort Wayne, July, 1848.

☞ DEAR SIR: In compliance with your request I would state that I have used Doctor Ralph's Pills in my family for something like ten years, and am satisfied that they are an excellent family Medicine. I have no doubt but that the most of them has at different times saved myself and family much sickness and expense.

DENTAL SURGERY.

DR. MEACHAM (Dentist) having been in the practice for 18 years in Ohio, and in the south, has concluded to locate in Fort Wayne, dealing according to the operations of repairing the teeth, such as cleaning, excavating, plugging, inserting, removing decay by silex and emeryes, &c., &c., will also attend to curing scurvy of the gums, diseased sockets and antrum. Scurvy is known by the gums bleeding easily, being spungy, by the necks of the teeth bare, and finally, if the teeth become loose and drop out. This scurvy Dr. M. can effectually, cure if taken in season. Exposed nerve can be destroyed with little or no pain. Offensive breath caused by diseased gums and sockets Dr. M. can effectually remove. He has about 30 different instruments for extracting, which enables him to take out teeth with less pain and more safety than the usual method. Price of extracting, 25 to 50 cents for each tooth or separate to suit. Office over J. B Shoaff's Drug Store, and under the Odd Fellows' Hall, on Calhoun street. Expense of the operations made known before operating, when desired. Work warranted.
